Fast Work Nets Two on Bomb Scares

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON

Two girls entered pleas of guilty in City Court today on a charge of falsely reporting an incident after three separate bomb scares forced evacuation of Kingston High School within a span of 80 minutes Friday.

Arrested Friday afternoon and charged with falsely reporting an incident were Salvia Marshall, 16, of 92 Emerick Street and Amy Landerway, 20, of 101 Abel Street. The Marshall girl is a student at Kingston High School, said police while Miss Landerway is unemployed.

Both girls were charged with making only one of the three bomb threats Friday, although detectives added that investigation into the other two incidents are continuing. The pair was remanded to the Ulster County Jail without bail and will appear in court Nov. 20 for sentencing.

City police, under the direction of Detective Sergeant William Slover, are continuing their investigation into the incidents that caused disruption at the Broadway school for the third time in the past three weeks.

The first report that a bomb had been planted in the high school came at 12:27 p. m. Friday, with a phone call to the central administrative offices.

Police and fire officials were contacted immediately by high school authorities and an intensive search of the building was conducted. The more than 1,000 students at the school had been evacuated quickly and quietly prior to the arrival of police and fire officials.

Subsequent search of the building revealed that the call had been a hoax, but only minutes after students were permitted to return to their classes, another call threatening that a bomb had been planted was again received by school officials. That call, received at 12:36 p. m., again caused evacuation of the building.

After the building had again been searched and students returned to their classrooms a third call, this time at 1:44 p. m., forced officials to clear the building once again. A room by room search revealed no suspicious objects.

The two girls were arrested shortly thereafter. Both were charged with one count of falsely reporting an incident (the 12:36 p. m. bomb scare) and taken for arraignment in City Court. Miss Marshall was released in the custody of a relative, said police, while Miss Landerway was committed to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bail.

Investigation into the bomb reports at 12:47 and 1:44 p. m. is continuing.

Friday's bomb scares were the first reported since a similar rash of threatening calls were received by school officials in late October, culminating in the arrest of 16-year-old Albert Daniel LaTorre of New Salem and three juveniles. Their cases have been continuing in City Court since Oct. 28.

Three false bomb threats were phoned in to school officials on Monday, Oct. 26, forcing evacuation of the building each time. Later that night, a molotov cocktail was thrown through a window of the building, causing a minor fire and forcing cancellation of a performance of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra. The next day, four bomb scares were reported to school officials. LaTorre and his three juvenile companions are charged with seven counts of falsely reporting an incident in addition to an arson charge.

both negotiating teams acknowledge

STONE RIDGE edged that some progress was made in the dispute which has been dragging on for several months, but because according to Louis Cessaratto, a faculty negotiator, the progress was limited to the area of "fringe benefits" and both teams appear to have made no headway on the crucial salary question.

The legislative team, headed by Brian White (R-Dist. 9), presented its "absolutely final" salary offer to the faculty at the Friday night session. This offer, which is still termed "unacceptable" by the faculty, was first presented earlier this week and has been endorsed by Ulster County Legislature.

At the Friday night session, the faculty and legislature negotiators present this final offer to their membership for approval. The faculty, however, has not agreed to do this because according to Louis Cessaratto, a faculty negotiator, "We have kept our membership informed and know what they want."

Legislator White disagrees. He feels that if the package, which calls for a 21 per cent salary increase over the next two years, is put before the faculty, it would receive approval.

Cessaratto however, dismisses White's assessment of the situation claiming that the negotiator's position has the overwhelming support of the association membership. He calls the calls for a vote "a typical ploy used by management in bargaining disputes in both the public and private sectors."

No date has been set for the next negotiating session as both sides were anticipating a showdown at the now postponed Monday hearing.

The value of this hearing was sharply disputed by both sides. Cessaratto said the faculty was looking forward to the hearing as a "source of new ideas and approaches to the dispute" and a "final chance for a peaceful solution."

However, Peter J. Savago, chairman of the County Legislature said that the hearing was "outside of PERB's jurisdiction" and would "just compound the problems."

Vatalaro said that the postponement was based on Franke's assessment of "progress in the talks" and denied that it was prompted by legislative pressure.

Jockey Hill Problem...To Dump or Not to Dump

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

TOWN OF KINGSTON

A serious ecological problem, the dumping of raw garbage in direct violation of the state's landfill law in the Towns of Kingston and Ulster has produced many conflicting statements but so far the situation is very amiable with all parties seeking a solution.

A problem of long standing, the situation was brought to public view again at Thursday night's Ulster Town Board meeting. Ulster still wants to have the dumping halted but claims it is stymied by a permit issued by the County Health Department. After considerable discussion it was decided to barricade the dead-end street, City View Terrace, which would halt use of the unpaved extension of the dead-end to the dump site.

Ulster Town Board ordered its Highway Superintendent to have a barricade constructed at the dead-end. In theory this would not halt the dumping because the two collectors involved can use another access lane which was described as a five-mile run of bumpy unpaved road.

Town of Kingston Supervisor Donald V. Dolan said the town has a dumping ordinance which requires a permit and rules of operation. He said under this law Leo Darwak is in violation as he has no permit. Supervisor Dolan said he personally inspected the dump site Wednesday and that the Town Board is studying some procedure of legal action. He said garbage cannot be permitted to be left open and there must be some solution.

Meanwhile, Darwak, who collects City of Kingston garbage and dumps it on his 50-acre site near Jockey Hill said today he received notification from the Town of Kingston in which they said he was in violation of the town ordinance. However, he claims he has a permit from the County Health Department to use the site as a dump in what has been termed as a compost operation, leaving the garbage open to rot and eventually nourish the soil.

Darwak further said he has written a letter to the Town Board asking for a meeting to discuss the problem. He said he and John Powers of the County Health Department inspected the site on Nov. 6. He noted that he was in the middle and was willing to do the right thing if the town and county officials can get together on what is required of him.

Philip Gerlach, who also collects garbage for the city is in a similar bind under the same circumstances, only in this case the Town of Ulster is involved. Gerlach dumps on a large tract owned by the Gerlach Estate nearby.

Sometime ago when the matter came up it was reported there is no available material or earth to cover the raw garbage and if landfill material has to be hauled in it would prove too costly.

The situation is serious for the City of Kingston and city officials have held meetings on the problem.

Harry F. Edinger, environmental sanitation engineer of the County Health Department said an exception to the state law has been made in the case of Darwak and Gerlach. He said the site is isolated and surrounded on three sides by state land and on the fourth by the Gerlach property.

Ulster Supervisor Carmine Sabino said in addition to the barricade action, the Town Board is also contacting the State Health Department in the matter to seek relief for the town.

Led by Defense Minister

Coup Overthrows Syrian Regime

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Defense Minister Gen. Hafez al-Assad seized control of Syria's government today after a quiet midnight coup d'etat that overthrew the Marxist civilian government.

Most citizens of Damascus—23 miles from the front lines of the Israeli army—were unaware that a coup had taken place and that their government leaders were in jail.

The Syrian capital was calm, with no signs of trouble on the surface and no unusual military activity. Shoppers thronged to the bazaars as usual and government ministries were open for business.

Arab diplomatic sources said Assad and his men arrested President Nouruddin Atassi, former Premier Youssef Zayyen and Gen. Salah Jadid, the leader of the Syrian Baath party, in raids on their homes late Friday, the Moslem sabbath. Jadid's only title is assistant secretary-general of the party, but he was the behind-the-scenes strongman of the regime.

None of the arrested men was harmed, the sources said.

But Damascus Radio, which in the past has broadcast Syrian revolutions with fanfares of Arab music, made no mention of a coup today. The state-controlled station opened its programs with chanted verses from the Koran and routine news of the Arab world.

Baathist sources said agents of Assad's intelligence force rounded up the key Marxist figures and set up guards at prime military and government buildings. They said there was no indication of tension in Damascus. With Damascus Radio silent, few Syrians apparently were aware of the events.

The Atassi spokesman, a member of the international Baath committee, drove to Beirut to announce the coup. He said Assad's men captured the state radio and television stations. But he said no tanks or armored cars were moved into Damascus as usually occurs in a Syrian coup.

Boistered by support of air force intelligence officers and Chief of Staff Gen. Mustafa Tlas, Assad moved after the party congress dismissed him from power on Thursday, the spokesman said.

Party sources reported that Assad, a 40-year-old air marshal, clashed repeatedly with Jadid during the emergency Baathist congress called to get Atassi to reconsider the resignation he submitted Oct. 8. They said Jadid charged that the defense minister had removed several army officers loyal to the Marxist command after Atassi sent Syrian tanks into Jordan during that country's civil war in September and the Jordanian army and air force routed them.

Syria has been the loudest nation of the Arab world in its hatred of Israel, but Syrian forces put up little resistance in the 1967 fighting. Israeli forces remain deep in Syrian territory and Israel's lines extend to 25 miles from Damascus.

The defense minister wants closer Syrian ties with Egypt and the Baathist wing in Iraq. He has advocated all-out war with Israel. Even so, he is considered more moderate than the Atassi regime's leaders.

Baathist sources in Beirut said Assad could be expected to be less adamant in pressing a military settlement with Israel than the Marxist Baathists. They said they also expect an attempt to join the Arab federation planned by the leaders of Egypt, Libya and Sudan.

Any change in Syrian foreign policy would bring Damascus closer to Washington, because the countries do not exchange ambassadors and the United States has no influence in Syria.

Thousands Are Dead From Pakistan Storm

DACCA, East Pakistan (UPI) — A cyclone and 30-foot tidal waves that devastated the coastal islands and southern shores of East Pakistan with heavy loss of life Friday is the greatest disaster in the nation's history, the government said today.

Initial casualty reports said 25,000 had died. Dispatches and visitors arriving from the scene said another 100,000 persons were missing, many of them feared dead.

Entire islands vanished in the storm, some reports said. Pakistani warships headed for the devastated coastal area with relief supplies. Most communications were cut off. Seawater from the storm flooded into freshwater supplies and created a shortage of drinking water and brought on sanitation hazards.

A pilot who flew over the scene estimated as many as a million persons in a 10,000 square mile area may have been left homeless. He said there were no signs of life in some areas.

Newspapers said heavily populated Hatiya Island remained under 20 feet of water until Friday afternoon. The Daily Purbodh and Daily News said officials feared half of the island's 162,701 population may have perished. The newspaper reports were not confirmed.

Many of the 2,000 offshore islands in the Bay of Bengal southeast of Calcutta were struck by cyclone winds up to 150 miles an hour and 30-foot tidal waves which raged Thursday night and early Friday. Most remained cut off from communications, including Dubla Island where 13,000 Hindu pilgrims had gathered for religious rites under a full moon, an auspicious occasion for Hindus.

Pakistani officials dispatched a motor launch to check on reports all or most of the pilgrims were drowned. Reports from unofficial sources repeatedly spoke of islands either missing or still inundated 24 hours after the giant storm. It was the ninth deadly cyclone to strike East Pakistan in 10 years and appeared to have caused damage in an area of 10,000 square miles with a population of 5 million.

Correspondent Kamaluddin Ahmed of the Eastern News Agency visited the coastal zone and said he counted 350 floating bodies. Others were stuck in tree branches or lying in paddy fields. He reported after a partial survey of the damaged coast that scores of other persons were dying.

Ahmed reported 90 per cent of the houses were destroyed along the 300 mile coastal belt between Neakhali and Chittagong. He said thousands of cattle perished and there was heavy damage to standing crops. Storm damage also extended inland to the Khulna and Barisal districts, 100 miles southwest of Dacca.

City Drug Case Goes to Grand Jury

KINGSTON—Arrested by Kingston Police during the area narcotics raids on Oct. 29, Earl Johnson, 48, of the Stuyvesant Hotel, waived preliminary hearing Friday before City Judge Hubert A. Richter and the case was referred to the grand jury.

Johnson was accused of criminal possession of dangerous drugs fourth degree and criminal possession of implements adapted for administering narcotics. Police said after the raids that they confiscated 14 decks of heroin and a quantity of heroin that had not been cut. Several other defendants in cases involving drugs appeared yesterday and received adjournments for hearing.

The cases of five teenagers arrested Friday night, Nov. 6 when police stopped a pickup truck in which they were riding were adjourned until Wednesday, Nov. 18. They were Michael Farrell, 19, of Kingston, operator of the truck, and Steven Lyle, 17, of 86 Johnston Avenue, Christopher Cahill, 19, of 157 Bruyn Avenue, William Franz, also 19, of 81 Emerson Street, all of Kingston, and John Caprotti, 18, Route 1, Box 336, Kingston.

The five were charged with criminal possession of dangerous drugs sixth degree after police found a quantity of marijuana in the truck.

Three other defendants, who were arrested Sunday night, Nov. 8 received adjournments. They were Barry Davis, 20, of Room 409, Stuyvesant Hotel, his wife, Wanda, 19, and Gail D. Drolet, 20, of Route 4, Box 242, Kingston. They were cited for criminal possession of dangerous drugs sixth degree and criminal possession of implements adapted for using narcotics. The criminal possession of dangerous drugs cases were put over until Dec. 2 for preliminary examination and Miss Drolet received an adjournment until Nov. 18. Police said the trio allegedly had in their possession a quantity of heroin and a "set of works" consisting of an eye dropper and a bottle cap which showed marks that it had been used for preparing drugs.

Pedro Portalin, 24, of 73 Franklin Street, charged with criminal possession of dangerous drugs sixth degree—marijuana, had his case put over until Nov. 23. Aleta Mercado, 23, same address, who was cited for a similar count, won an adjournment for hearing on Dec. 9. They were among the 14 persons taken into custody during the raids Oct. 29 conducted in Kingston and outside communities by Kingston police.

New Climbers' Route, Controversy Simmers

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — Warren Harding and Dean Caldwell geared up to continue climbing El Capitan today, their 23rd day of clinging to a sheer wall of the big rock, while controversy simmered in the valley below over the rescue the two didn't want.

A party of four climbers remained on top with 1,700 pounds of climbing gear in case conditions—mostly weather—forced a rescue.

A planned rescue Friday was scrubbed after Caldwell, 27, of Portland, Ore., called down from 1,900 feet up the vertical and overhanging wall:

"A rescue is not warranted, is not wanted and will not be accepted ... We can finish the climb with no difficulty."

Ranger Pete Thompson, who led the rescue team, doubted that because the pair had nearly 1,000 feet and four days to go with virtually no food. He said a rescue appeared inevitable in a few days.

"But we want them to climb as far as they can," Thompson said.

In an official statement Friday, Larry Quist, the park information officer, said the rescue operation was based on a request from Harding and Caldwell received Wednesday night that they needed help. At that time it was raining and cold.

"Yesterday, Nov. 12, dawned bright and clear and Harding said late yesterday afternoon, 'We did not need assistance,'" Quist said.

Quist's comments were disputed by Harding colleagues on the ground—the only ones in direct communication with the climbing team. There had been no previous indication that the climbers wanted help.

Quist also said Harding would be billed for the cost of the rescue, but valley climbers said this was unusual and possibly unprecedented.

Caldwell and Harding, 46, of West Sacramento, Calif., are trying the first ascent of the 3,000-foot high "Wall of the Morning Light," a new route up the southeast face of El Capitan.

Harding led the first ascent of El Capitan by any route in 1958. There now are at least half a dozen more routes but the Harding-Caldwell route is perhaps the most difficult.

J. L. Slizewski Dies, Ex-Freeman Employee

John L. Slizewski Sr., of 163 Tremper Avenue, who retired in 1968 after 48 years with the Daily Freeman, died this morning.

Slizewski began working at the Freeman in 1920 as an office boy and was promoted to foreman of the composing department in 1946. At the time of his retirement, he supervised the operation of 11 linotype machines and a force of 47 employees. In January, 1968, he was feted at a retirement dinner-dance at the Flamingo Restaurant in Saugerties.

A son of the late Michael and Antoinette Slizewski, he was born in Kingston and attended Immaculate Conception School and Kingston High School.

Active in the Loyal Order of

JOHN L. SLIZOWSKI

Moose, he was honored in early 1966 with a life membership following 18 years of service to the organization. He was chosen for the honor from among 100 eligible Moose and, prior to that time, has held posts as junior governor, governor and past governor.

Slizewski was also a member of the Kingston International Typographical Union, Local 322, the Freeman Social Club and the 20 Year Club at the Freeman.

His widow, the former Margaret E. Mealy, has also been active in lodge activities for a number of years.

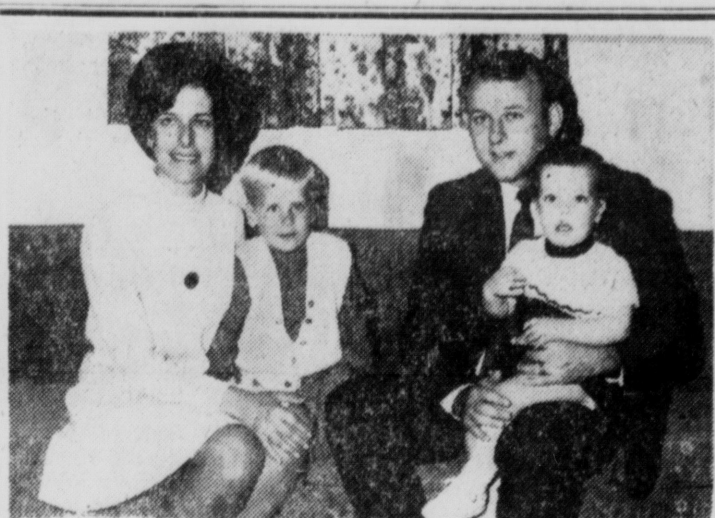

Slizewski is survived by his widow; a daughter, Mrs. Vincent (Nancy) Nicolosi of Kingston; four sons, Richard and Robert of Kingston, John L. Jr., of Newark, N.J. and Alfred K. of New Orleans, La., and four sisters, Mrs. Sophie Cole, Mrs. Josephine Vertetis and Mrs. Martha Jordan, all of Kingston and Sister Mary Melania of Enfield, Conn. Four grandchildren and several nieces and nephews also survive.

Funeral will be held from Henry J. Bruck Funeral Home, 27 Smith Avenue Tuesday at 10 a.m. Burial will be in Mt. Calvary Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday and Monday from 2 and 7-9 p.m.

Saugerties Power Failure

WEST CAMP—About 150 customers in the Maiden-West Camp area north of Saugerties were without electricity for about three hours early today as the result of a mysterious incident that left a utility pole severed but no substantial indication as to its cause.

Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation received the first call that service had been disrupted in the area at 3:46 a.m. today. Investigation revealed that a utility pole on Route 9W near West Camp had been severed and apparently struck by a car.

Area police authorities, however, had no reports of an accident in that area this morning and were unaware that the incident took place. They are not planning an investigation of the occurrence, it was noted.

Two Central Hudson work crews arrived at the site shortly after 3:46 a.m. and restored service to the 150 customers by 6:30 a.m.

A spokesman for Central Hudson told The Freeman that the pole had either been knocked down or severed in two and left hanging by the wires. It was speculated that the utility pole had been struck by an auto,

There are mixed feelings about the 1970 deer hunting season which opens Monday in New York State. Some deerhunters think the unusually warm fall weather will mitigate against them. There are strong reservations about the cutback in party permits in some areas and the shooting of does is not the explosive topic it once used to be.

As Floyd King pointed out in his annual resume of New York State prospects for Outdoor Life, there has always been a hard core of sportsmen, who have never gone along with the theories of the Conservation Department biologists in the matter of shooting does.

THIS IS STILL a touchy issue in the Adirondack sector of the state, where it has been a political battle all the way. One favorite technique has been for the big-game clubs to get as many party permits as possible and tear them up. But the whole doe-hunting concept still rankle many Adirondack hunters.

The feeling in the Ulster County sectors of the Catskills is that there is ample food and the deer herd should be in good condition. The local deer population is reported low but the reduction in party permits may alleviate that situation.

The Conservation Department's new policy of dropping the armband requirements for party hunters has also caused some criticism. In the past, all party members doing the antlerless hunting had to wear an armband. After the deer was killed, the armband was torn in half and filled in, and one part was affixed to the deer.

This year all that will be required is for one man in the party to carry the antlerless permit. Presumably he will be the only one allowed to shoot the antlerless deer. The permit will then be filled out in ink and torn in half. Conservation officers say this shooting provision is almost unenforceable.

Size of antlerless parties has been increased this year and three and four-man parties will be the general rule. In the central and western regions the landowner-permit parties will still be two, but otherwise it will be four.

PAUL KELSEY, the Regional Conservation Educator for the Conservation Department, has issued his annual warning on lost hunters. Each year, he points out, the big game hunting season brings with it a fairly substantial quota of lost hunters.

This doesn't happen so often in the Southern Tier as in the Northern Zone, for obvious reasons. There are more roads criss-crossing Southern Tier hunting territory than there are in the more sparsely populated areas to the north. It's comforting for a hunter to find a road, even if he doesn't recognize it. His chances of coming out to some sort of civilization are no worse than 50-50 no matter which way he follows it. Eventually, he'll find his car, though he may have a hike of several miles.

There is no evidence that Daniel Boone, or the present day woodsman, has any better instinct to find his way in the woods than does the novice city hunter who came out several miles from his car. The difference is that one knows the lay of the land before he starts and makes systematic mental notes as he goes along, while the other just plunges blissfully hoping that he will come out in the right place.

IT'S NO FUN being lost in the woods and it could be fatal. In either case, it isn't necessary. Yet, hundreds of hunters will force the ordeal upon themselves this season because they will have neglected to prepare for such an eventuality.

They will be meticulous in the preparation of all other phases of planned hunting expeditions. Guns will be cleaned, checked and re-checked, fancy clothes will be purchased, food and travel expenses will be included, extensive forays planned and paid for—everything except a compass and a map to guard against becoming lost.

True, there are hunters who don't need such safeguards. Experience has taught them how to read the surrounding landscape and keep their sense of direction. They can return to camp after a long day's hunt without having to think about it. But there are many others, especially novices, who are not as gifted, yet refuse to take along a compass or topographical map for assistance. Hence, they spend valuable hunting time keeping their bearings and worrying about finding their way back.

WHY SPOIL A pleasurable hunting trip and limit your success with such a handicap when you've waited so long for another season? There's nothing shameful about a compass. The best guides carry and use them when necessary.

In addition to a compass and a map of the area you intend to hunt, notify someone as to your plans and the time you expect to return. If this is not practical, leave a note on the windshield of your car. Either move will enable searchers to begin their work immediately and without guesswork, should you fail to return on time.

To help you survive in such an emergency, carry a small first-aid kit, high-energy rations, matches in waterproof container and a flashlight. A smoke fire during the day is a good distress signal. Three spaced shots from your firearm is another.

When lost, don't panic and don't wander aimlessly. Build a fire, fix a shelter and stay put. Searchers will find you.

Remember, hunting is for fun—not to get lost.

Blinder Blasts 707, A Career-First

KINGSTON Jack Blinder of Kingston has been waiting 28 years for his first 700 series in bowling and it finally arrived in this week's Invitational Classic session.

Blinder, an employee of Rotron Manufacturing in Woodstock, needed a strike in the 10th frame of the third game to nail down the 700 series—and he got it.

The tenpin veteran appeared to be on his way to a comfortable 600 series with a 439 total (237-202) at the end of two games. But an opening four-bagger in the third game, followed by a 7-pin tap in the fifth frame got him to thinking about a possible 700, a feat that has eluded him for nearly three decades. The 707 is tied for 5th place in the Top Ten.

"When I got to the seventh frame, I knew I could make it if I struck through to the 10th," he said. "I got the first strike about," he remarked, "but for the sake of the record, let's call it my highest."

A twice a week bowler, Blinder is now in the 185 range in the Invitational Classic and 175 in the City Minor.

Jim Amendola was runnerup with a hat trick 665 off 203, 245 and 217. LeRoy Lewis was a pin behind with 246, 22-664.

Other 600 qualifying scores were tossed by: Tom Kearney, 202, 225-600; Bill Noreika, 203, 253-637; Herb Petersen, 207, 202, 248-637; George Magley, 213, 210-602; Bruce Davis, 201, 236-609; Bud Lowe, 214, 230-635; Big Bob Sheltzner, 213-621; Jack Ferraro, 209-603; Bob Coisson, 215, 201-605.

Bowling Score

HOWARD MARKLE linked 204, 191, 214 for 609 high slam in the Men's Junior Major. Skip Tatarzewski decked top solo (232) and 606. George Finch rapped 220, 225-602, after a 157 opener. Team highs were: Kingston Ornamental Iron, 911, 2654.

RAYMOND CROSWELL linked 221, 167, 211 for 599 in Overlook League at Woodstock. Ed Snyder's 256 was top solo. Sharing team high with 2650 were: Folkers Brothers (910) and Mower's Food Market.

Kickers Add Four Players

MORGAN HILL

The cavalry has arrived! And the Kingston Sport Club Kickers are in much better shape, physically and mentally, for Sunday's game with a brand new team at Oehler's Soccer Stadium.

Four outstanding area collegians joined the Kickers at their Wednesday night practice session this week. Two were familiar hands, the other two a pair of talented operators who will immeasurably boost the Kickers' chances against the powerful Doxa team of New York in a contest scheduled to get under way at 2:30 p.m.

The Kickers have strengthened their badly battered forces with the addition of four UCCC players—Klaus Weber, Richie Bush, Fernando Nasmyth and Gerald Lee-Hing. Weber, of course, is a former Kicker and field manager who enrolled at UCCC this season. Bush played previously with the locals, Nasmyth and Lee-Hing, two of Coach George Vizvary's more productive players at UCCC, are brand new to Oehler audiences.

Their presence in the lineup has to lift the Kickers above their present plight. Going into Sunday's Premier Division test, the Kickers are in sixth place in the six-team Premier Division South, with 2 wins, 5 losses and a tie. However, they remain only two points out of second place in the topsy-turvy league race.

Spring Valley leads with 13 points on 6 wins, a tie and loss. Sportfreunde of Passaic is second with 7 points. Brooklyn and Bavarians are ahead of Kingston with identical 5:9 point ratings.

Doxa, on the other hand, is currently leading the Premier Division North with 11 points on 4 wins and 3 ties. They are a young and very fast team, consisting mostly of Greek players. They were admitted to the league only last year after sweeping to the championship of the League Division.

Ingo Froehlich, the Sport Club president and public relations director, points with some considerable pride that four members of Kingston's starting lineup Sunday are natives of the Kingston area.

The quartet includes Bush, Ken Neslund, Bob Joyel and Joel Tomson, who has been brilliant in the goalie slot.

The soccer season is over for Dave Kallop. But he did not seem too up the Rhinebeck Indians, and the Indians lost the DCSL crown and Tim Jack, and other var-boys managed to pull off their set with this loss of talent, in a hotly contested 4-2 game city boys eligible to return are commenting that there are a with Arlington.

Rules for a Gun

Come Monday local nimrods will venture into the fields to try their hand at bringing home the bacon with a gamey flavor. Before long there will be news about certain characters that appear onstage every hunting season—the fellow who didn't know his gun was loaded, the one who propped his gun against the fence while he crawled through, the man who shot at something that moved in the woods, the hunter who left off the safety and then stumbled.

There are others of the same ilk. Not bad fellows, but careless, forgetful that the gun they carry is not a toy but a weapon capable of killing a man if it is not used properly.

The rules for handling rifle or shotgun are not complicated. Anybody not familiar with them can quickly find out what to do and what not to do with a gun. Any man who knows the rules but doesn't follow them is an irresponsible citizen not fit to be afield with a gun. Hunting is a pleasure for many people each fall, but it can be death to some of them because of such irresponsibility.

Critical Drug Problem

The increasing number of arrests involving dangerous drugs in Ulster County and elsewhere throughout the state and country shows the extent to which the problem has grown in recent years. Today, drug abuse is one of the critical problems confronting society. It calls for more strict and vigorous law enforcement.

Attorney General Lefkowitz has called for a statewide law enforcement to remove the drug pusher from communities and to prosecute those who bring narcotics into the state. He urges a joint effort by the U.S. Government, district attorneys throughout the state, the local police departments and his office.

Recently when President Nixon signed the Drug Abuse Control Bill, he said, "in order for the laws to mean anything, they must have public support. The whole nation must help save the lives of thousands of young people who would otherwise be hooked on drugs and physically, mentally and morally destroyed."

It was a strong statement to emphasize a strong law, the third major Administration crime bill approved by Congress this year. It focuses federal law enforcement on controlling the flow of narcotics and dangerous drugs; and capturing and punishing pushers. Penalties for possession or use of dangerous drugs are reduced from felonies to misdemeanors punishable by no more than a year's imprisonment; and allowing probation, parole or dismissal of charges at judge's discretion.

However, punishment for the sale of narcotics is increased. They range from five years to life, depending on the nature of the selling operation and the type of the drug or narcotic pushed. Manufacturers and distributors will be licensed; and reporting and record-keeping regulations strengthened. The addition of 300 federal narcotics agents with "no knock" power will enforce the law.

The government now recognizes that the use of narcotics and dangerous drugs has reached a crisis. Stringent controls are necessary to curb these uses. Education, treatment and rehabilitation go hand in hand with control, to reclaim as many as can be persuaded to kick the habit. Ordinary citizens and local governments must help in reporting pushers, apprehending and penalizing offenders. Those who "keep still" and protect the lawbreakers help to destroy America's young people.

Tar and Nicotine

Man being obdurate, cigarette brands relatively high in tar and nicotine continue to sell best. That statement is verified by government tests.

The Federal Trade Commission samples cigarettes every three months. October tests showed 34 varieties reduced in tar content and 15 increased. Nicotine contents were down in 20 varieties and up in 18. Which indicated that tar and nicotine content are not fixed, they vary from time to time, so inquire every three months into their current content if you want to be comparatively safe.

However, safety is not the overriding thought among cigarette smokers, it seems. Of the 10 brands rated lowest in tar and nicotine, only one was among the 10 best sellers. The sales leader has 10 times as much tar as the lowest and 13 times as much nicotine, according to the FTC.

People are kicking the habit by the thousands, but consumption figures continue to rise, as also deaths from lung cancer and emphysema. Either new smokers are coming in or old ones are smoking more. It takes a lot more will power to quit than most realize. More proof it is a dangerous habit.

The suicidal suggestion that South Vietnam announce a unilateral cease-fire has been rejected by South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu. Any cease-fire must be agreed to by both sides. For one side to make it singly would be to invite annihilation.

"Repeat After Me: 'I Love You!'"

Henry J. Taylor Says Governorships Alarm Nixon

President Nixon privately pounded on a selected alarm behind the scenes at his Florida White House post-election political huddle.

The tally which ignited his concern is not the House results. He was prepared for this and feels the G.O.P. did well in this off-year. Nor even the Senate results. The President personally has become stoically used to living with the Senate against him. His alarm came in the governorships. The results are directly related to 1972 and Mr. Nixon sees a time bomb in them.

Mr. Nixon subscribes to the dictum that "elections are won between the elections" and he knows well that political parties are built and sustained through the state capitals. Their vitality and power depends heavily on the governor and his patronage.

When Mr. Nixon ran in 1960 the Republicans had only 17 governorships and both houses of the legislature in only six states. But the subsequent off-year Republican victory in 1966 was a victory in depth.

The G.O.P. emerged with a full half of the governorships: 25. These represented states with 58 per cent of the nation's population and 302 electoral college votes. The G.O.P. gained three Senate seats, 47 House seats and—immensely important from Mr. Nixon's point of view—10 governorships.

These G.O.P. results were, in fact, Mr. Nixon's springboard to the Presidency, for in this victory in depth he helped mightily. Ten of the 12 governors Mr. Nixon campaigned for in 1966 were elected, along with 55 out of 82 representatives he campaigned for and 10 of 13 senators. The big G.O.P. winner in all this was Mr. Nixon. Through the added governorships he had immensely strengthened in the grass roots the Republican party.

At the Florida huddle President Nixon privately superlatively the importance of this underpinning in his 1968 run. He also reverted as often to his 1968 minority win. Of 37 Presidential elections this was the 15th with less than a majority, usually because of third parties. And Mr. Nixon revived the specter of newly-elected Alabama Gov. George A. Wallace once more in 1972. Tentatively, the feeling at the Key Biscayne meeting was that Mr. Wallace may well run again.

Mr. Nixon won in 1968 by 43.4 per cent of the popular vote. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey got 43 per cent. Had Mr. Humphrey carried California with its 40 electoral votes he would have won only 14 of the 50 states. But he would have won 231 electoral votes to Mr. Nixon's 262.

This would have been so close that Mr. Wallace's 45 electoral votes would have kept Mr. Nixon from getting the required majority of 269 (Mr. Nixon got 302 by winning California) and prevented anyone's election at the national polls in 1968.

Yet by 1968—and this is the crux of the President's alarm—there was not a single Democratic governor left in any major industrial state. Mr. Nixon's party had them all. Not so now for 1972—and that's the fuse that sent up the Nixon rocket at the Key Biscayne meeting.

Two years ago Mr. Nixon carried only three of the seven largest states, even with the gubernatorial underpinning. These were California, Illinois and Ohio. Knowing political arithmetic as he does, Mr. Nixon himself hardly believes he can be re-elected without winning these three.

In California the G.O.P. retained the governorship, but Democratic Rep. John V. Tunney's resounding election to the Senate revealed heavy erosion in the G.O.P. base.

In Illinois Democrat Adlai Stevenson 3d's senatorial election revealed that the unity between Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and liberal campaigners has been re-established on a forbidding scale.

In Ohio, so long a keystone in Mr. Nixon's hopes, the G.O.P. lost the governorship to Democrat John J. Gilligan. Mr. Nixon has to kiss that state capital goodbye.

Moreover, in addition to some Western governorships, the Democrats won the statehouse in giant Pennsylvania. And, although the G.O.P. won the governorship by an eyelash in Michigan, the Democratic organization staged a near sweep in the other important tests.

Behind closed doors and keyed to gubernatorial results, the Key Biscayne meeting developed into a downright defensive huddle. The President himself laid bare the prospect of nothing like the G.O.P.'s 1968 underpinning in 1972 and came down hard on his own need to revamp his policies in the grass roots—and at once.

Old Political Axiom Won't Hold True for Some Losers

By HOWARD CLARK
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—What happens to candidates for statewide office who lose in the general election? Answer: Republicans end up in high public office, usually appointive, and Democrats fade away to run again another day.

It's been that way for 12 years while Nelson Rockefeller has been governor. In election after election, familiar Democratic candidates reappear. And after the election, the losing GOP candidates find a spot on the public payroll.

There are signs, however, that this old political axiom may not apply this year in a few cases.

Take Arthur J. Goldberg, for example. In the past, Democratic candidates who lost to Rockefeller have run again—Robert Morgenthau is a good illustration—or at least remained active in party activities. Morgenthau, defeated by Rockefeller in 1962, sought the Democratic gubernatorial nomination again this year.

Goldberg is different. A reluctant candidate to begin with, he ran a somewhat independent campaign and was aloof of party machinations.

Some of his campaign positions were hardly designed to please party leaders. Among other things, he said that he would work to take judges out of politics and to eliminate patronage.

He had not been involved in previous political battles in the state, so few segments of the party hold allegiance to him.

Goldberg now is vacationing on his farm in northern Virginia. Persons close to him say he will return to law practice in New York and probably will not be active in Democratic party affairs.

If the political axiom doesn't hold true for Goldberg, then how about the Republican candidate for comptroller? After all, in three previous elections the defeat of the Republican candidates at the hands of Arthur Levitt actually turned out to be a promotion.

James A. Lundy, defeated in 1958 by Levitt, was a former borough president of Queens. After the election, Rockefeller appointed him as chairman of the State Public Service Commission.

John J. Lomenzo, who fell to Levitt in 1962, was a county judge in Monroe County. He was named as secretary of state.

Charles T. Lanihan, downed by Levitt in 1966, was Oneida County executive. He was appointed as director of the State Office of Planning Coordination and now is Republican state chairman.

This year, Levitt defeated Edward V. Regan, a former city councilman in Buffalo. Regan says he's not interested in appointive, full-time state office.

Would he run again? "Yeah, sure," he said. "I'm not discouraged." Regan added that he probably wouldn't want an appointive job, certainly not full time.

Then there is Republican Charles E. Goodell, defeated by Conservative James L. Buckley in the three-way senatorial race.

Kenneth B. Keating, the last Republican incumbent senator to lose reelection, was elected a year later as an associate judge on the Court of Appeals. Keating, defeated by Robert F. Kennedy in 1964, now is U.S. ambassador to India.

A spokesman for Goodell said the senator has not made up his mind about the future, though "he's not about to disappear from the public eye." He said Goodell is considering several ventures, including lectures, tours, writing and teaching. But he doubts that Goodell would want an appointive office.

It's possible that these examples may be the exceptions to the rule.

Richard Ottinger, the Democratic candidate who lost to Buckley, says he will work full time to promote consumer programs as environmental protection and job safety. He said he would work to rebuild the Democratic party in the state and would remain active, in politics.

This sort of talk does not discourage the notion that Ottinger will be back again in 1974 for the next U.S. senatorial election in the state.

Among the unsuccessful Democratic candidates who returned this year to try again was Paul O'Dwyer, who was defeated by Sen. Jacob K. Javits in 1968. O'Dwyer sought the gubernatorial senatorial nomination but lost in the primary election.

Howard Samuels, the losing Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor in 1966, sought the gubernatorial nomination this year. He may turn up again.

They show that the axiom, though tarnished, is still true.

Jack Anderson Says Senator Harris' Comanche Wife On Warpath in Behalf of Indians

WASHINGTON — Senator Fred Harris' beautiful Comanche wife, LaDonna, has gone on the warpath in behalf of flimflammed Indians. She is raising a legal defense fund to help them fight their battles in court.

A confidential working paper on the subject tells in angry detail of Indian-skipping by Washington law firms, local officials and white traders. Presiding benignly over the corruption, the document alleges, is the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

"What the government failed to take by military force has been picked over by skillful manipulation of the law, corrupt courts and sometimes deliberate deception of Indian tribes by avaricious whites," declares the working paper.

The blistering document, prepared by Americans for Indian Opportunity which LaDonna Harris heads, proposes a legal aid that would cost $175,430 the first year and rise to $280,000 the third year.

Toughminded lawyers would be hired and solicited as volunteers to protect Indian rights. The document cites abuses in 25 states.

In Oklahoma, for example, the Bureau of Indian Affairs contracted with the state to spend $580,000 in federal funds to educate Indians. When Indians suggested the funds had been misused to educate whites, the document charges, the Bureau improperly "waived the right to a complete accounting of these funds."

The average Indian under federal jurisdiction, incidentally, completes only the sixth grade.

Indian Justice

Mrs. Harris would also like to force states to put Indians on juries. They are excluded in the main from Oklahoma juries, although they make up 10 per cent of the state's population.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs, instead of aiding Indians, invalidates Indian wills so white men can buy up Indian land and appoints white men as "guardians" over Indians. The Washington law firms, which are supposed to represent the tribes, show more interest in pressing claims that will increase fees than in gaining justice for the Indians.

Moreover, in addition to some Western governorships, the Democrats won the statehouse in giant Pennsylvania. And, although the G.O.P. won the governorship by an eyelash in Michigan, the Democratic organization staged a near sweep in the other important tests.

Behind closed doors and keyed to gubernatorial results, the Key Biscayne meeting developed into a downright defensive huddle. The President himself laid bare the prospect of nothing like the G.O.P.'s 1968 underpinning in 1972 and came down hard on his own need to revamp his policies in the grass roots—and at once.

Data now available indicates that so many combat-ready troops and so much in arms and equipment were requisitioned for Vietnam from American forces in the United States, Europe, the Mediterranean and other parts of the world that if such a major crisis had developed in the Japan-Korea, Taiwan (Nationalist China), Middle East or Western Europe, the United States likely would not have been able to meet the situation with the necessary forces in the time limits modern war requires.

In the bookish language of the military: "In the case of a major requirement that had priority over Southeast Asia operations, it is doubtful if forces could have been redeployed from Vietnam to a new theater rapidly enough to meet the demands of that situation."

This is a chilling observation. This gamble has only been possible because during the worst of the Vietnam period, when demands for men, arms and equipment were the greatest, the United States had a commanding nuclear ICBM, missile submarine (Polaris) and long range bomber superiority over the Russians.

We are certainly in no position militarily to take it now.

With that massive nuclear advantage gone, in all probability we shall never again be able to take such a risky gamble as we have taken in Vietnam.

It is precisely in part at least, because this nuclear umbrella is gone, and gamble has become far too dangerous in view of the Middle East and other possible confrontations, that President Nixon is drawing down our forces in Vietnam so determinedly and is lowering so markedly the level of combat by U.S. forces

Indian consumer rights are non-existent. The working paper tells of a white trader on a Navajo reservation who charged $2.85 for a 95-cent pound of coffee under license from the federal government. Mark-ups of 120 per cent are common.

The LaDonna Harris group praises poverty corps lawyers but says there aren't enough of them working with the Indians. As for Indian lawyers, there are only about 10 in private practice.

"The need for legal education in the case of Indian citizens is even more pressing than in the Negro movement," says the working paper. "The Indian must contend with more than 2,000 regulations, 389 treaties, 5,000 statutes, 2,000 federal court decisions, 500 Attorney General opinions and 33 volumes of the Indian Affairs Manual."

"The shameful, but widely recognized truth is that the government has often acted in ways which violate the concept of trusteeship. Often the highest interests of the Indian tribes are sacrificed by their trustee for the objectives of the Corps of Engineers or the Forest Service, or for other federal and state programs."

Mine Industry's Image

Most Americans expect the federal Bureau of Mines to enforce mine safety laws and perform research in the public interest. But the Nixon Administration, apparently, is more interested in polishing the mine industry image.

The Bureau is opening a chain of new branch offices whose job, according to Assistant Interior Secretary Hossie Dole, is "to improve the mineral industry image."

Dole made the comment in a talk to a group of the bureau's research technicians during a special Washington meeting. Witnesses quoted him as saying that the branch offices should "sing the song of the industry and carry the banner of the Bureau of Mines."

Reached by this column, Dole denied the quote about singing the industry's song, but acknowledged the rest. He insisted, however, that by improving the industry image, he meant through positive action, not Madison Avenue tactics.

Political Timing?

The timing by the Nixon administration of a $11.8 million grant to bolster commuter service on the New Haven run of Penn Central has brought howls of "foul" from Democrats and talk of investigations from the House Commerce Committee.

A few days before the elections, Secretary of Transportation John Volpe sent out a special press release telling of the grant and how it would help commuters.

Volpe lauded Reps. Lowell Weicker and Thomas Meskill, both Connecticut Republicans, and Rep. Ogden Reid and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, both New York Republicans, for their work in getting the grant. Volpe mentioned Connecticut's Gov. John Dempsey, a Democrat, who wasn't running for reelection.

The four Republicans, in contrast, were running vigorously for office at the time of the announcement.

The fact is that two campaigners out of favor with the Administration did far more to improve the New Haven service than Weicker, Weicker's opponent, discredited old Sen. Tom Dodd, had worked actively for the commuters. So had Sen. Charles Goodell, R-N.Y., whom the Nixon team opposed.

What has infuriated the Democrats is that all of the GOP politicians praised by Volpe beat their Democratic opponents.

It must be understood, of course, that a major part of this speak more softly stance has been forced by the shift in the balance of nuclear power—or so Nixon's advisers see it. Moscow, of course, is well-aware of these American weaknesses, which have developed at the very time the Russians have assiduously built up their naval, air and ground strengths (as well as nuclear power).

This may be the reason Moscow seemingly is willing to take more risks of late—as in the Middle East.

It also is the reason for the Nixon doctrine—which aims at taking the more limited American power (more limited when compared to Russia's growing strength) and applying it, if possible, only where most effective, and above all making every attempt not to dilute that power by letting it get bogged down in "small" wars.

TEEN SCENE: Random Thoughts on Winter's Ways

By LEI

We all know that the date on the calendar rarely has a thing to do with the day that the season really changes. You remember that day last February when the mud on your boots meant spring was here, or the day in April when summer came with your new sneakers? It may have been as early as July when you caught the taste of autumn in the crunch of a barely-ripe apple. So don't look now, but . . .

It's winter. Winter is the time when your favorite forbidden face-filler is hot chocolate, not strawberry milk shakes. It's time when suddenly the Christmas merchandise that's been on display since Halloween doesn't look out-of-place anymore. The basketball scores become more important than football, and you catch yourself referring to the 1971 cars as "last year's models."

It's that time when your mother starts bringing home rolled-up calendars, and the siblings pass up the tube for a couple of hours to read something—the toy catalog. It's the day a chick can no longer see the white mark on her back left by the top of her two-piece swimsuit and the part of her hair that the sun blonded has grown out enough to be cut off.

Winter? It arrives close to the day when you no longer need the radio weather report to warn you it's cold enough for the zip-in-lining, and you aren't surprised to see your breath anymore. The pliable, brilliant fallen leaves of autumn are replaced by twisted brown mummies, and then by dust, waiting to be covered by snow . . .

Winter? Well, the girl that monopolized the male population by wearing a white crocheted bikini to the beach blows her whole fan club when she gets sick while dissecting a frog in biology, which she is flunking anyway. A guy finds the name and address of the summer girl while cleaning out his pockets, and for a moment, the name is unfamiliar. Which is alright, because the summer girl no longer even expects to find an envelope from him in the mailbox. In a month, they may pass each other on the street and not even realize it.

Chicks suddenly notice that the boy who was lifeguard last summer has acne.

Winter? Midi-skirts make a lot more sense than they seemed to in August. It isn't a matter of deciding anymore whether to go barelegged or wear pantyhose—the question is whether or not to wear the high boots. A fly appears in the kitchen and is marveled over before it is swatted — "Where did THAT come from?" The place that used to take a half-hour to walk to must have moved, because it now takes twenty minutes. The earpiece falls off your sunglasses, and you decide to get another pair. Which you will, in March. Things seem to be flavored with cinnamon and sage and butter. The hot soup tastes better than the sandwich.

One cloudy day, someone asks, "Is it going to snow?" instead of "Is it going to rain?" When the first tentative flakes fall, everyone acts as surprised as though it had never happened before. Suddenly hitchhiking doesn't seem like a romantic way to travel, and the only kids on bikes are the paper boys. You don't hear much about politics anymore, and the only portly gentleman chuckling ho-ho-ho and kissing babies is Santa. The eyeshadow that looked perfectly all right when you first got it May leaves you looking like the Munsters' poor country cousin, and it is hard to apply blusher so that you don't look contagious.

Winter? Traffic, not birdchirps wakens you in time when the alarm clock gets the quits. You're shopping for a special gift, but not for the same person you thought you'd be shopping for in August. You get sick of the word "turkey." You find a sandal under the bed, but you can't remember when the last time was that you wore it, or where the other one is.

A month ago, summer still lingered like the last guest to leave the party. It was still warm enough in those afternoons after school to carry your jacket, walking home. Now that jacket is too light, even at noon. Records that are still new are memory-coaxers, and what was the name of the boy who played that haunting harmonica last summer and . . . What happened to the final picnic, the one you never got around to, and where did autumn go, anyway? And when will we see the first sign of spring?

Youth in the News

Special recognition is coming ducted into Athenians, the academy of Ulster County young people at home and on campus.

This week's Youth in the News has received word from Ithaca College that Joseph Moriello of New Paltz was awarded a special citation for excellence in speech at the recent Ithaca College Honors Convocation.

Moriello, a senior at Ithaca received the ward on the recommendation of the speech department's faculty for his continuous outstanding achievement in that subject. A 1967 graduate of New Paltz Central High School, Moriello is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moriello of 141 Route 32, New Paltz.

John M. O'Brien, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. O'Brien, 1124 Oakwood Drive, Kingston, has joined the staff of International Business Machine (IBM) Corp. at Kingston, as a ten-week cooperative education student.

O'Brien is a senior in the College of Business at Rochester Institute of Technology. For his cooperative work assignment, he will serve as a parts analyzer in the Product Control area of IBM.

RIT's cooperative education plan is part of the Institute's continuing effort to grow and remain consistent with the changing requirements of the business and industrial community. This plan of education coordinates alternate ten-week periods of study with periods of employment in business and industry. It allows students to supplement their academic work with actual work experience. While completing their higher education, the students are also helped financially as well as academically through their full-time work experience.

A 1966 graduate of Our Lady of Lourdes, Poughkeepsie, he also attended Ulster County Community College. Several Ulster County students have enrolled at Bay State colleges this fall.

Two local girls are on a campus at Mount Ida Junior College, Newton Centre, Mass. Lois Wisook and Kerry Silkworth are both sophomores majoring in retailing. Lois, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wisook of 160 Hurley Avenue, is a graduate of Kingston High School. Kerry, a Rondout Valley Central High School graduate, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Silkworth of Route 3, Kingston.

David M. Fletcher of Ringtop Road, Kingston, is enrolled in the class of 1974 at Tufts University School of Dental Medicine, Boston, Mass. An added attraction in that freshman class is that it includes three girls among the 108 future dentists.

Indians Add Social Events

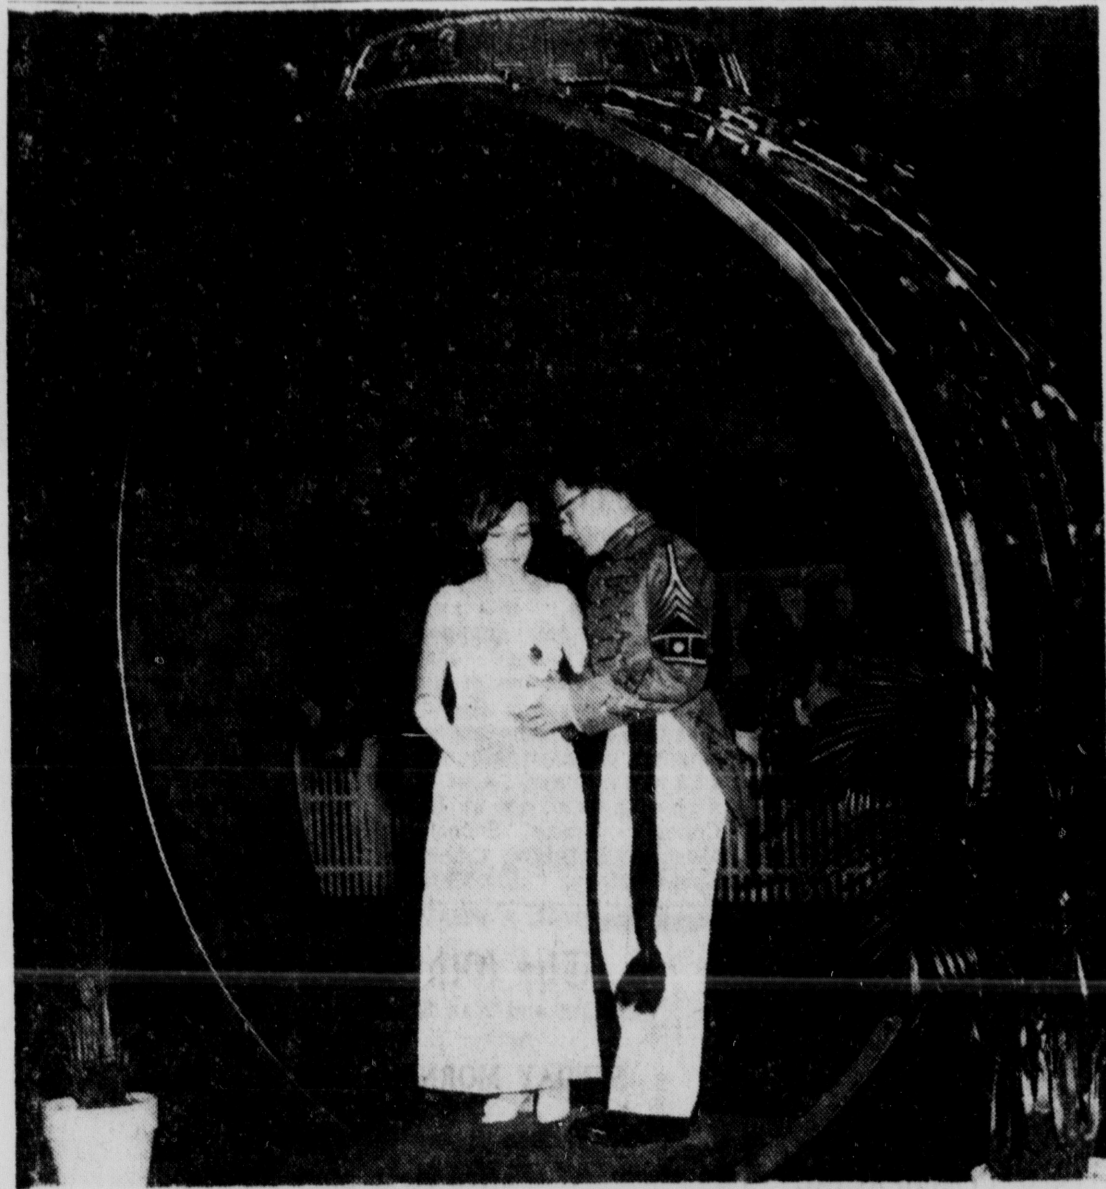

All is not practicing and marching for the Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps.

The first annual formal ball was staged recently with the apt theme of Indian Summer. Highlight of the evening was crowning of Jessica Maloney as queen and Patti Lane and JoAnn Rose as her court.

Assisting with the arrangements were George W. Cole as general chairman, Nancy and Sue Harris and Debra Hawver were in charge of tickets. Gilbert Sampson officiated at the crowning.

Proceeds of the formal dance totaling $104 were presented to the drum corps for the truck fund.

The newly appointed social activities committee is planning a number of events for the winter season including a special group bowling tournament and dances.

The Classic Stage Repertory group grew from a nucleus of performing artists founded at New York University, and moved on to the New York City Rutgers Church in 1967. It has been in its present location, 89 West Third Street, since October 1969.

Other recent trips have included an evening of Experimental Theater at Vassar College where students saw the production of Lysistrata by Aristophanes. The play, written in 413 BC, deals with the dual themes of war resistance and women's liberation. Students also attended a lecture workshop in printmaking at Ulster County Community College.

Ecology Action at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ New Paltz High School's Earth Committee continues its active role in putting ecology problems before the public.

Last week members of the committee attended a meeting of Protect Your Environment (P.Y.E.), a national college organization with a recently formed chapter at New Paltz. The college group meets every Wednesday 7:30 in the CUB Lounge at the college and the high school group plans to attend future meetings.

The high school Earth Week Committee which came into being last spring continues to take weekly water samples from the Wallkill River from south of New Paltz to the bridge in Tilton. Members extend this service to any resident wishing to have their own private water supply tested for phosphate and bacteria. Anyone wishing the service may call the high school. The committee has been campaigning for clean-up of a dump-on Water Street and has twice appeared at the village board meetings they were assured that findings. At last months board meeting they were assured that the situation will be rectified before winter.

Members commended the board for its action. Commendation from the Earth Week committee also went to Simmons Plaza merchants for their efforts in cleaning up the area including empty lots. Committee observers urged customers to do their part in keeping the area free of litter.

In addition to these activities, students have been doing research on the overall problems of pollution and what can be done to improve the situation. A number of articles have been prepared by students based on their research and observations. Recent writers include Ann Baker, Deborah Perkins, Ruth Paltridge, Carol Dixon, Diane Lent and Jeanne Simard.

Holiday Spirit at Rondout Valley

STONE RIDGE season to needy children of the area.

Thanksgiving but the December holiday glow has started already at Rondout Valley High School. Two student projects got underway during the past week directed at the Christmas season.

Both are designed to bring traditional cheer. High school band members are again selling holiday candles, a practice initiated last year. And to add even more light, this year they are also selling bulbs. Band members hope that district residents will be able to use at least one variety of these festive illuminants.

The 1970 Fall-Winter Concert will be held this year on Dec. 5 and at that time the bands will show their appreciation to their patrons.

Meanwhile the Industrial Arts Club is very much in need of old toys for its annual holiday toy project. Each year the club repairs, paints and otherwise rejuvenates old toys which are distributed during the holiday season to needy children of the area. District residents who have toys to dispose of may leave them at the high school or contact Ronald Mapstone to arrange pick up of articles.

Other Rondout Valley events are closer at hand however. Only one week of rehearsals remains for the Senior Class of Rondout Valley Central High School, who will present "Little Mary Sunshine" as the annual class play on the evenings of November 19, 20, and 21 at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

Tickets are now on sale at the ticket booth in the high school lobby. Some tickets will be available at the door on performance nights.

The Rondout Valley High School Bands will once again be well represented in this year's Area All-State Band. The All-State Festival in this area will be held at the Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial High School in Hyde Park the weekend of November 20-21. The eleven students chosen are all 10th and 11th graders and they will perform with 103-piece band selected from 27 schools in an area extending from Long Island to Livingston Manor.

The Rondout selectees this year are: Ruth Poenicke (flute), Denise Panaccione and William Taylor (clarinets), Kathy Davis (oboe), Jodie Countryman (bassoon), Beauford Woods (tenor sax), Linda Miller (baritone sax), Ronald Saul and Cathy Highland (cornets), Brian McCann (baritone horn), and Debbie Lykka (percussion).

And then there are those RVHS sophomores who last night went Bzylmgedrig. That tongue-twister was the theme of the sophomore class dance held at the school last night. The name was chosen in a contest among class members.

Music for dancing was furnished by the Junction. Varsity football players were admitted free in recognition of their great performance during the season which ended last Saturday in a win over Oteora and a second place finish for the year.

Kathleen DeCicco Weds Joseph Marino

Miss Kathleen T. DeCicco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas DeCicco of 107 Second Avenue, Kingston, exchanged nuptial vows with Capt. Joseph M. Marino, son of Mrs. Viola Marino of Glasco, on Sunday, Nov. 1 at St. Mary's Church, Kingston.

The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly officiated at the double ring ceremony. Thomas Forcino, uncle of the bride, sang traditional wedding selections. Baskets of white gladioli decorated the altar and white satin bows marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk velvet, fashioned with a high neckline and long full sleeves cuffed at the wrists. The neckline and bodice were enhanced with Venise lace banding which also encircled the empire waistline. Her train was chapel length. She wore a stylized crown of Venise lace edged with seed pearls to which was shirred her silk illusion veil, one tier being cathedral length. She carried an oval cluster of white pompons, centered with a white orchid corsage.

Miss Annette Carpio of West O'Reilly Street, Kingston, was maid of honor in a culotte style gown of blue Chianti crepe, fashioned with an empire bodice and long full sleeves. Floral braid edged the vest of royal blue velvet. She wore a matching velvet Camelot cap with fingertip tulle veil and carried a basquette of blue and white and headpieces were identical in styling to that of the honor attendant's and they carried basquettes of blue and white pompons tied with blue bows.

Jeannine Costello of Glasco, cousin of the bride, served as junior bridesmaid. She wore a gown similar in styling to those of the other attendants. A crown of silk flowers served as her headpiece and she carried a basquette of blue and white pompons tied with blue bows.

John Marino of Mt. Marion was best man for his brother. Ushers were Carl Rea; Joseph DeCicco, brother of the bride; John Sangi; James Bruno, cousin of the bridegroom; James Marino, nephew of the bridegroom, was junior usher.

A reception for 250 guests was held at Capri 400 Restaurant in Port Ewen.

For her wedding trip to Mt. Airy Lodge, Pocono Mountains, Pa., the bride selected a white knit pant suit, styled with a high collar and long sleeves.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School and attended Ulster County Community College. She is head cashier for American Finance Corporation, Kingston Plaza.

Her husband, an alumnus of Saugerties High School, earned his BS degree in Mathematics from Siena College. He is a ROTC graduate and is now a captain in U.S. Army at Ft. Meade, Md.

Capt. and Mrs. Marino will make their home at Laurel, Md.

Legion Auxiliary Requests Items For Veteran's 'Operation Gift Shop'

Members of Kingston Post No. 150, American Legion Auxiliary, are joining their counterparts throughout the country and state in formulating plans to staff the gift shop counters at the Albany Veterans Hospital.

Auxiliary officials said the 17th annual "Operation Gift Shop" is to provide hospitalized veterans an opportunity to send their loved ones some little memento at Christmas. Mrs. June Murphy, rehabilitation chairman, said there are some 1000 hospitalized veterans in the Albany Veterans Hospital at this time and Auxiliaries in the District must provide a large number of gifts. Anyone wishing to donate to such a worthy cause is urged to contact Auxiliary members or to leave gifts at the Legion Post located at 18 West O'Reilly Street in Kingston. Only new gifts suitable as Christmas presents are to be accepted.

Gifts received will be placed on display in the hospital recreation room for the Open House on Monday, Dec. 7. Auxiliary Units from Ulster County will be at the Hospital on Monday, Dec. 7 to assist with the gift wrapping of the gifts.

VEST SUIT

The vest suit in cotton corduroy will make the school score this fall, says the Men's Fashion Association. The suit has a long vest and stovepipe pants to match. Extra styling details include button flap pockets and side slits on vest. The association suggests a floral print shirt to add the right touch of color.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cole of RD 3, Box 140, Kingston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Rose, to Arnold Richard VanLaer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold VanLaer Jr. of Cedar Hill Road, High Falls.

The bride-elect is a senior at Rondout Valley High School.

Her fiancé, a 1967 alumnus of Rondout Valley High School, attended Syracuse University and Ulster County Community College. He is employed at Cartworth Laboratories, Stone Ridge.

Sisterhood Dinner, Fashion Show Held

Sisterhood Ahavath Israel held its annual paid up membership dinner and fashion show Wednesday, Nov. 11 in the Synagogue Social Hall at 100 Lucas Avenue, Kingston. Fashions were provided by Valley Casuals under the direction of fashion coordinator, Betty Goldschlagg, and Sisterhood program chairman, Jean Semilof and Norma Goldschlagg.

Models were the Mmes. Stanley Austin, Barry Axler, Morton Brett, Burton Feit, Harry Fertel, Max Salomon, Irving Scher, Seymour Werbalowsky and Miss Judy Schechtman. Mrs. Seymour Semilof moderated the show and Mrs. Henry Singer provided piano accompaniment. Mrs. Steven Scher coordinated activities backstage. Articles from the gift show were selected by Mrs. Joseph Horowitz to be shown with the clothing.

Rabbi Harry Z. Schechtman installed new members prior to the show. Payment of Sisterhood dues served as admission. Mrs. Arthur Schiff is in charge of dues payments.

The National Women's League of United Synagogue of America of which Sisterhood is a member will hold its Biennial Convention Nov. 15-19 at the Concord Hotel in Kiamasha Lake. Mrs. Seymour Semilof, a National Women's League Branch vice president, and Mrs. Henry Jacobs, president of Sisterhood, will represent the group. Anyone wishing to spend a day at the Convention should contact one of the delegates for further information. Visitors will not be asked to pay the registration fee.

Many Sisterhood women are planning to attend.

A handmade afghan will be awarded in the spring. Mrs. Murray Greene is in charge of the fund-raising project. The public is invited to participate.

On November 21 Congregation Ahavath Israel will sponsor its annual Thanksgiving Ball to begin at 9 p.m. in the Synagogue Social Hall, 100 Lucas Avenue. There will be a stage show, dancing, and refreshments.

Mrs. Sanford Gossett is in charge of Sisterhood Ahavath Israel's cookbook which will be ready for distribution early next year. Anyone with delicious kosher recipe who would like to be included in the book is asked to contact Mrs. Gossett.

Sisterhood Ahavath Israel held a rummage sale November 2 to 4.

Working on the event were: Mrs. Jerome Levinson, chairman, and the Mmes. Pearl Adin, Harry Schwadron, Gerald Feit, Irving Wilpan, Lillian Goldberg, Sidney Rafalowsky, Bernard Cohen, Norman Kestlin, Henry Jacobs, Joseph Avis, Harold Pinkus, Murray Greene, Leonard Hershoff, Irving Scher, Max Eckdich, Burton Feit, and Alvin Parnett.

Plans for the above activities were made at a recent board meeting chaired by president, Sheila Jacobs. Those attending were the Mmes. Ira Shaw, Marvin Millens, Ephraim Propp, David Weinstein, Irving Scher, Leonard Hershoff, Arthur Schiff, Sanford Gossett, Bernard Cohen, Max Millens, David Seigal, Leonard Kronick, Sidney Samuels, Murray Greene, Joseph Horowitz, Harry Z. Schechtman, Martin Netburn, Harry Schwadron, and William Ohsie.

Awarded Citation

At the first general meeting of the 1970-71 season of the New York State City Singing Teachers Association, Leonard Stine was awarded a citation in honor of 25 years of membership. Mr. Stine resigned last year as director of music at Kingston Schools Consolidated and since then has been teaching privately at his studio at 52 Maiden Lane.

Widely known as a vocal and choral adjudicator, he is a life member of the American Choral Directors Association and holds a fellowship in the National Association of Teachers of Singing.

In 1959 he was the recipient of the Kingston Newspaper Guild Page One Award in Music. A fitting testimonial to his teaching is the fact that more than 120 choir alumni have gone on to study music professionally. Many of whom are now engaged in school and college teaching positions. A number of alumni have had parts in Broadway musicals and some are today singing professionally. Choir alumni have also won scholarships at Ithaca College, Crane School of Music at Potsdam, Cincinnati Conservatory, Eastman

LEONARD STINE

School of Music and Boston University.

A book, "Course of Study for Class Voice Training," which Mr. Stine wrote, is included in the New York State secondary school music syllabus.

Mr. Stine also served as choir director in Lutheran Church, of the Redeemer and as member of the board of directors of Kingston Community Concert Association.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I have finally discovered the quickest and easiest way to solve the space saving problem of folded trash bags.

Simply fold the bag, smoothing the folded bottom as usual, then tuck the bottom of the bag into the open top of the bag.

You'll end up with a neat little package that won't fly open and jam up your drawers or jump out of the cabinet door every time it is opened.

Julie

It's all in the bag with this hot hint.

Thanks a heap, pal.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Have you ever used your electric mixer at high speed and had what you were beating go on high speed as well, and all over the counter top or table?

Well, I took a paper plate and cut to the center, no further. Then I cut each opening from the top of the beaters to fit. Believe it or not, no more mess.

Norma

Dear Heloise:

I have found a good way to fill sofa pillows with foam rubber.

Take a grocery bag, cut out the bottom and insert in the hole you have left open to fill the pillow. Then cut a small hole in the foam rubber bag and pour in the sack.

The grocery bag acts as a funnel and the job goes much faster and there's no mess to clean up.

Look Here Mrs. Homemaker

Getting gray hair, worrying these days? Not hard to find things to worry about, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist. SO WHY WORRY?

Life is so complicated these days that sometimes we don't even worry right! For example we:

worry about the Russians then pick up a hitch-hiker, worry about H bombs then buy kids fireworks.

worry about flying then fail to fasten auto seat belts, worry about cancer then drink and drive.

worry about fires then smoke in bed, worry about paying off the mortgage then overload electric outlets.

worry about thunder and lightning then jaywalk or cross on the red.

worry about burglars then leave highly flammable liquids or firearms within the reach of anyone.

worry about heart attack then swallow medicine in the dark.

worry about the stock market then forget to have the car serviced regularly.

worry about juvenile delinquency then let kids make fun of policemen and teachers.

Let's resolve to worry only about things we can actually do something about.

Dear Heloise:

I just started giving my baby strained foods, so I stocked up on an assortment of baby food in those little jars.

Lacking in excess storage space to keep each fruit and vegetable in a column of its own, I first listed on a piece of paper each fruit or vegetable. Next to each name I put a mark (111) for each jar.

Then I taped the list on the inside of the cupboard door and put a pencil on a string and thumbtacked it next to the list. Now when I use a jar, I cross through one of the marks. No more hunting through the cabinet in search of a jar that isn't there. On shopping day, I know exactly how much of each fruit and vegetable to buy.

Mrs. K. Cheatham

Dear Heloise:

Here's a hint for all of your readers who are tired of hurt fingers and broken fingernails when putting slip covers on living room furniture.

Rummage Sale Is Scheduled

The rummage sale sponsored by the Woman's Club of Saugerties will be held on Friday, Nov. 20, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Republican Headquarters Building on Partition Street. Mrs. Edward Jabs and Mrs. George Puram, co-chairmen of the sale, report that a wide variety of items will be available at the sale and that additional items are still being accepted. Proceeds of the rummage sale will benefit the Club's community service projects. The Ruth M. Gustin Memorial Scholarship is awarded in June to the most deserving female graduate of Saugerties.

TONY MARRELLI, Prop.
Lucas Ave. Extension Phone 338-3216 & 331-9704

NEW YORK UPI—Designer Adele Simpson, considered peerless as a designer of ladylike clothes, brings back the huge fringed shawl for spring. Triangular-shaped shawl, that is.

The prettiest in her collection, seen Thursday, matched a nearly ankle-length silk dress printed in what she described as a rose festival pattern. The shawl was so huge its back point fell to the hem of the dress.

For spring, Mrs. Simpson, winner of many designing awards, also likes ladylike capes. One was shown with a daydress several inches below the knee. It matched the red dress and was slightly longer.

Only 'Ladylike' Clothes

Another cape was a neat above the elbow length one that matched a navy gien plaid tailored dress.

Mrs. Simpson, whose customers include Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, endorsed the jumper and the jumper look—the latter being a dress with sleeves set in to look like a blouse. She also favored the coat and shirtwaist dress, in neutrals, navy and paintbox colors. None of these was mid-length.

Designer Simpson, sticking with the formula that has made her successful, served up only ladylike clothes. There wasn't a peek-a-boo or transparent top look in the collection.

Pants Outfits

The pants outfits that opened the collection were four parters meant for those who want to be comfortable while going from here to there by plane.

The pants had matching wrap-around skirts and mid-length trench coats, plus dotted or printed blouses self-bowed at the neck. These came in red and navy versions. Worn with huge-brimmed hats they were indeed ladylike.

For after five, Miss Simpson likes pastels nearly to the ankle dresses, some with skirts decked in founcing. The fabrics she favored were crepe, silk and chiffon.

Soft dressing was how she described the evening silhouette, featuring many chiffon cages in pale ice cream colors.

Who Is the Better Driver — Teenage Boy or Teenage Girl?

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK UPI—Increasingly the person behind the wheel is the teenager.

Safety officials estimate that 20 per cent of the nation's drivers are in the teen bracket. They predict that by 1975, over two million high school students will own cars. All of which brings up the matter of safety and who is the better driver, the boy or the girl? One automotive concern set out to find the answer with questionnaires to 2,335 driving instructors in 600 high schools across the nation. Fifty-two per cent gave the safety nod to the boys, 48 per cent to the girls. That accolade for the woman driver growing up ought to put to rest future gags about dames behind the wheel.

The boys start out ahead of the girls because they become interested in a car at an earlier age, the instructors agreed.

Boys have more opportunity than girls to learn the fundamentals before they are enrolled in driver education courses. Many male students tend to be more mechanically minded than the girls.

But the study, conducted by the Chrysler Corporation, showed why the girls' established high ratings. They take their lessons much more seriously than the boys, they seem to eager to learn, the apply themselves more to learning skills.

In all, the instructors reported both sexes take the courses seriously. One instructor observed, however, that the teenager ego is around. "We watch for overconfidence, the cocksureness, the I-know-it-all boast to assert itself," he said. "And when it does, we try to nip it in the bud, to put a brake to it, so to speak, at the very start. Fortunately, these students are in a small minority."

In general, the report continues, highway safety authorities, police officials, lawmakers, insurance companies and motor vehicle bureaus estimate that of those taking driver education courses, upwards to 60 per cent have fewer violations and that 36 per cent have fewer accidents than those who have not had formal instruction.

Another objective of the automotive survey was to find what measures could be instituted to improve student driving. Sixty-seven per cent of the instructors suggested stricter law enforcement. Some recommended that teenagers be treated as adults in traffic court.

A third of the instructors advocated stricter fines and a little more than 50 per cent stressed that laws regarding revocation or suspension of licenses be made more severe.

'Bracken's World' Ending

Casualties: "Bracken's World," the producers of CBS-TV's series about the behind-the-scenes goings-on at a movie studio, has been canceled, effective this midseason too.

The series, which ran for two years, was a situation comedy about a governor and his daughter, about a young, star of the nation's most popular television series, ABC-TV's "Marcus Welby, M.D.," told "Variety" correspondent Dave Kaufman that the network at first was reluctant to have him in the show, and that he actually tested for the role despite being in the business 40 years.

CBS-TV's Ed Sullivan devotes his entire Nov. 22 program to a tribute to composer Richard Rodgers on his 50th anniversary in show business, with guests including Herschel Bernardi, Shirley Jones and the Lennon Sisters. Same network's new, stumbling Andy Griffith series, "The Headmaster," about a school principal dealing with contemporary problems, is reported being revamped so the star will return to something closer to the format of his old, No. 1-rated situation comedy.

Petula Clark has an hour variety special on ABC-TV Dec. 9, and her guests include Peggy Lee, Dean Martin and David Frost. Flip Wilson's Dec. 10 NBC-TV outing features Lena Horne and Tony Randall. Pearl Bailey's one-hour weekly ABC-TV variety series, scheduled for a January premiere.

The Programs: Radiation dangers are examined in a half-hour CBS-TV documentary, "How Peaceful the Peaceful Atom?" next Tuesday. "It Couldn't Be Done," NBC-TV's hour of such American achievements as the Panama Canal and Golden Gate Bridge, will be repeated Feb. 9.

New Off-Street Parking Plans Pose Problems

PARKING PROBLEMS—The Common Council has before it two requests from two separate groups of businessmen for more parking.

One group, the Uptown Businessmen's Association, wants a parking lot for its employees. The other group, the Central Broadway Businessmen's Association, wants a 250-car parking lot for its proposed shopping plaza between the Rondout National Bank and Scholar's.

Let's look at the midtown scheme first. Believe it or not, that plan for a plaza has elicited at least benevolent curiosity from the aldermen. Not all of them, of course. As far as we know, all of them haven't seen it. But the ones who have, Bernie Sims (13th Ward) Jack Finch (Fifth Ward) Brian Smith (Third Ward) and Flo Ludlow (Fourth Ward) haven't written it off as some kind of pipe dream.

What the midtown bunch lacks is organization. All they have now is a plan which may or may not make it. The Mayor was properly non-committal on the scheme, issuing a request for complete survey of the area. The mayor is big on surveys. He doesn't go along with one man's idea on anything. He likes consensus.

How many people go for the idea in the midtown shopping area is perhaps the key question. But then there are questions about the overall cost and who's going to pay it.

The businessmen claim that they want to pay for the construction of the plaza. All they ask of the city is that the city arrange for some of that cheap (three per cent or so) money so they can afford the project.

Still to be decided is who is going to pay for that parking. If it's the city's shot in toto the Central Broadway group can shelve it. Kingston isn't paying for any more parking. The Uptown Businessmen's Association, makes sense when he says that employee cars have to be kept off the streets to free the parking spaces for paying customers.

But we think that Stan has been to the well too often.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

WHICH BRINGS us to the Uptown plan for an employee parking lot. In all fairness, Stan London, president of For example, Pete Mancuso, chairman of the Traffic Committee which will make recommendations to the full Council, toned down his private statements for public print quite a bit. Mancuso is one of those rare persons who never curses. Never. He came close when we asked him about the new parking lot for the uptown businessmen.

London, of course, pooh-poohs Mancuso's arguments that the city has already provided a $700,000 parking garage and two parking lots on North Front Street valued at $495,000.

For one thing, London says, the $700,000 was state money for the urban renewal project uptown and didn't cost the city anything. He doesn't argue about the cost or the source of money for the two parking lots but notes that they are filled most of the time.

Both business organizations have at least one solid point going for them. The uptown group is asking for a parking lot in an area that has already been designated for parking by the Uptown urban renewal plan. The midtown group has a string of promises on parking lots going back at least two administrations. Some politician's promises aren't worth the air it takes to make them. Mayor Keenig's word, on the other hand, seems to be pretty good. Tough to get. But good when you get it.

The midtown businessmen are going to have to get organized, come up with some facts and figures and talk turkey to the city fathers. They might have a chance.

As far as the Uptown plan, the way things look from this corner, it has a great chance of passage . . . If it doesn't have to go through the Council.

COUNCIL CAPERS—One of the quietest sessions in months. Maybe the aldermen were still thinking about the elections. Alderman-at-large Bob Gallo welcomed Mike Perry, Seventh Ward alderman, back to the fold. Perry had missed a few meetings, reportedly due to illness. It seems Perry is still out of touch with things, though. He never said a word when Cliff Sinsabaugh and Eddie Roux were howling about the Penn Central derailments downtown. Perry is chairman of the Railroad and Bus Committee.

DOWN THE HALL — Gene Dillon, the cop in the parking lot, is recovering from cracked ribs after taking a header at his house on Sunday. True to the reputation of Kingston's finest, Gene was back on the job next day.

Vince Peck, who works for the city and moonlights for Bob Gallo at his florist shop, is thinking about running for alderman as a Democrat in the 13th Ward. Peckie, as he's called, would be a shoo-in except for one fact. Bernie Sims, the incumbent alderman, is rated one of the best.

Peckie is fondly remembered at city hall as one of the principals in the "roost no more" caper several years ago. At the time former Mayor Garraghan was at war with the pigeons and it looked like the birds were getting the upper hand.

Naturally, Buddy Lyle, the city clerk, caught all the flack. Garraghan, we are told, bought a package of Roost No More, a pigeon killer which some shill told him was infallible.

Lyle was given his climbing orders but meanwhile, legend has it, Peckie and several cohorts hid the magic powder from Lyle. Fortunately for Lyle, Garraghan got to fighting with the aldermen and forgot about the pigeons and the Roost No More. Lyle and Garraghan are out of office now, but not the pigeons. Some things are eternal.

Eleanor Bruhn is back in the city clerk's office after a brief illness. It looks like Lou DeCicco missed his deputy. In October, John Machione asked the city clerk's office to write a letter of commendation to the city's firemen and policemen for their work in the firebombing at Kingston High. At the November meeting, Machione asked if the letter had been written. It hadn't. Red-faced DeCicco said he forgot. No doubt because he was short handed.

Police Cars Arrive and They're Ready to Roll

With motors running and patrolmen at the helm, six new city police cars are ready to roam the streets of Kingston. Mayor Francis R. Keenig presents keys for one of the cars to Police Chief Francis Fagan after arrival of the vehicles at the rear of City Hall recently. Equipped with a 400-horsepower engine and heavy-duty transmission, brakes and suspension, each of the cars contains the latest in law-enforcement equipment. The cars were purchased from Johnson Ford at a low bid of $17,763. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Outline Tasks in Program Studying Area Water Needs

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

The work of the Commission on the Water Supply Needs of Southeastern New York got underway Thursday in New York City with the appointment of its executive director, Robert D. Hennigan, according to Assemblyman H. Clark Bell and State Sen. Jay P. Rolison, members of the commission, who attended.

Hennigan is presently director of State University Water Resources Center at the State University College of Forestry in Syracuse and has an extensive background in his field and is a diplomate, American Academy of Environmental Engineering.

Bell reported that the problems faced by the commission are of technical, political and institutional nature.

In order to carry out the charge to the commission, certain tasks must be carried out and synthesized into a comprehensive and coordinated recommended program, Bell said, outlining the tasks as follows:

- Collect and assemble all pertinent studies and reports and consult with appropriate agencies to assure maximum input of available data and information.

- Review and synthesize available studies into a consolidated report which identifies the water supply needs for the next 30 to 50 years, identifies the facilities to meet the needs and develop a set of viable technical alternatives for presentation to the commission including the development of new resources and the introduction of effective conservation and management efforts, with estimated costs.

- Prepare technical monographs on the feasibility and cost of induced rainfall, desalinization, advanced waste treatment and recycling of waste water. Also metering and rate schedules.

- Review pertinent state law to identify constraints and barriers to effective program implementation.

- Review state programs to see how they can be utilized in reaching the objectives of the commission.

- Determine the proper and effective role of the federal, state and local government.

- Study innovative approaches to financing and administering the construction, operation and maintenance of water supply and related facilities as a search for new ideas and possible application to meet the water supply needs of Southeastern New York.

Committee members serve without compensation.

- Develop a set of alternatives, institutional arrangements aimed at overcoming boundary limitations.

- Assist the commission in evaluating alternatives and making specific recommendations for action in light of existing facilities and practices, conservation values and costs.

- Retain a nationally recognized engineering consultant to review, evaluate and comment on recommended technical programs.

- Draft the enabling legislation to implement commission recommendations.

- Prepare interim and final reports on commission activity.

- Prepare and hold public hearings on recommendations as directed by the commission.

A budget of $186,000 for the 18-month study is proposed. It includes a $30,000 contingency. Legal services for bill drafting assistance would be included in the contingency. The study will take in three months in 1970, 12 in 1971 and three in 1972.

Bell and Rolison are both hopeful of protecting Ulster and Dutchess County's water supply and ensuring adequate supplies to meet future needs as population increases.

Bell said that right now the Hudson Valley has adequate supplies of good water but by 1985, "we could have a severe water shortage if demographic studies are correct."

Committee members serve without compensation.

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Communist forces launched a fresh attack against the airfield at Kompong Cham 50 miles northeast of Phnom Penh at dusk Friday but Allied air support drove them off, government military spokesmen said today.

The airfield, on the outskirts of the city, came under heavy Communist attack earlier this week but government troops beat them back. The spokesmen said once again the attackers were driven off, but that no further details were available. They did not say whether the Allied planes involved were American.

Communist troops also harassed a government position on the road to the abandoned town of Troeung, but no damage was reported. Troeung, on Highway 7, was evacuated earlier in the week but when government troops moved back to take it they found it deserted. They decided not to keep a garrison there.

One infantry commander in the area said intelligence reports now indicate Communists are occupying the town in force.

Cambodian troop reinforcements moving into the area were bottlenecked at the site of a destroyed highway bridge between Phnom Penh and Skoun, according to field reports. Cambodian commanders were organizing road convoys to move sections of a U.S. pontoon bridge to the site of the destroyed span, knocked out by Communist sappers Tuesday.

The bridge was flown to Phnom Penh by U.S. C130 Hercules transports from South Vietnam.

In South Vietnam, there was a sudden upsurge of combat Friday and 13 Americans were reported killed. An unarmed U.S. Phantom reconnaissance plane was shot down over North Vietnam and both crewmen aboard apparently were killed.

The RF4C was on a routine pictures-taking patrol when it was hit about 105 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone and 42 miles south of the coastal city of Vinh. It was the 11th U.S. aircraft shot down over North Vietnam since bombing ended Nov. 1, 1968.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird in Washington warned North Vietnam the United States stood ready to take "appropriate action" for the downing of the reconnaissance plane, but did not specify.

Meanwhile, authorities at the United States Military Academy at West Point said today that South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky will visit West Point during his trip to the United States which begins Sunday.

An Army spokesman said Ky will arrive at West Point Sunday and spend the night at the superintendent's quarters. On Monday, he will attend an honor guard ceremony at Trophy Point.

The official schedule for Ky's two and a half week visit to the U.S. has not been made public.

Laird Warns Hanoi

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has put the North Vietnamese on notice that further attacks on unarmed American planes could bring renewed air strikes against anti-aircraft installations in North Vietnam.

Laird noted the downing of an RF4 reconnaissance jet with two crew members aboard 42 miles south of Vinh in North Vietnam Friday and declared, "we remain ready to take appropriate action in response."

The RF4 was the 10th knocked down by North Vietnamese gunners since the U.S. halted the bombings over North Vietnam Nov. 1, 1968. The last jet lost was shot down last May.

Laird said firing on the reconnaissance planes, a recent rocket attack on Saigon and troop movements across the demilitarized zone were all in violation of the understanding which led to the U.S. bombing halt.

The North Vietnamese have always refused to acknowledge any such understanding. The defense secretary expressed deep concern over the loss of the RF4's crewmen, who are presumed to be dead. The pilot of an escort jet said he spotted no parachutes when their plane went down.

Though Laird was answering questions posed by the National Council of Community World Af-airs Organizations, he appeared to have planned the warning beforehand.

He said the bombing halt, ordered during the final days of the Johnson administration, was "predicated on the fact that the North Vietnamese would negotiate in good faith" at the Paris Peace Talks.

"To date, the North Vietnamese have chosen not to negotiate in any substantive way," he said.

Pentagon sources say the North Vietnamese have been beefing up their conventional anti-aircraft weaponry near important supply lines and installations just north of the DMZ.

Officials say it's all part of preparations now under way to move large numbers of trucks into southern Laos to resupply Communist forces in South Vietnam and Cambodia during the coming dry season.

Senior Citizens Need $4,660

KINGSTON tions to publications: $500 for The Ulster County Senior Citizen's Alliance Inc., is seeking $4,660 from the Ulster County Legislature in order to continue as an independent, voluntary, non-political organization.

An appeal was made Thursday afternoon by George Maitland, vice chairman of the Alliance, before the 4 p.m. session of the Legislature.

Maitland pointed out that there are 17,000 voting senior citizens in the county who "by and large represents a conservative, constructive and stable segment in a society which is in the process of splintering through lawlessness, corruption and pressure groups."

Maitland asks specifically for $600 for office equipment, desk, chair, typewriter and file cabinet; $360 for a phone; $500 for mailing; $100 for subscription suggests it will study how other senior citizens organizations are proceeding, how to establish recreation centers using federal and state agencies already in existence.

An independent organization, not affiliated with Ulster County Community Action or the Ulster County Advisory Board, the Alliance, at present, has 15 township senior citizen clubs connected with it and welcomes others to join.

Since its organization in September of this year, the group has helped organize and attended a meeting in Nyack on the White House Conference on Aging, addressed by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. Maitland presented six proposals amending the present social security law which were discussed and approved at the conference.

The Ulster County Alliance

proposed is modest in view of what the group is aiming to accomplish.

He said he felt that "There is a crying need for a county as senior citizen organization which would point out, amend, ameliorate, and rectify the difficulties ensuing from the constantly changing pattern and, if we do not help and succeed, a good many present and future senior citizens will end up as prospective candidates of the welfare state.

Maitland explained that he was aware that his proposal is in view of the fact that the Ulster County budget has been put together and is due for a public hearing Nov. 24. Copies will be available the afternoon of Nov. 18.

Lilting True-Life Story of Universal Appeal

"The Sound of Music," the eleventh musical comedy from the pens of Rodgers and Hammerstein, will open for four performances next week through the creative skills of Coach House Players.

The curtain will rise at J. Watson Bailey School auditorium at 8:30 p. m. Thursday, Nov. 19 for the initial staging, with repeat performances on Friday, Nov. 20 and Saturday, Nov. 21. Because of the large demand for tickets and the universal appeal of the show, a special children's matinee will be presented on Saturday, Nov. 21.

This lilting entertainment celebrating the true-life adventures of the famous Trapp Family Singers will star Betty Lindsay in the role originated by Mary Martin, and Raymond Caddy as the artistic Austrian, Capt. von Trapp.

Familiar Face

Betty Lindsay, a familiar face to Coach House audiences, has previously lent her lovely voice and vivacious charms to major roles in "South Pacific," "Pajama Game," and "The King and I," as well as many other local productions. A soloist with the Fair Street Chior, she sang with the Empire State Music Festival and was a soloist with the Yankee Male Chorus. She also has starred in Kiwanis Kapers and the Hospital Follies. She hails from Wurtsboro, where she is village clerk and treasurer.

Raymond Caddy, who previously starred with Mrs. Lindsay in "Pajama Game," has appeared in 12 other Coach House productions. An IBM engineer by profession, Ray is one of those rare people as talented behind the scenery as he is in front of it. For many productions, this one included, Ray has worked also as set designer. He lives in Kingston with his wife, Linda, also a Coach House member, and their two children.

The plot of "The Sound of Music" closely follows the real-life story of a singing family who delighted concert-hall audiences in America and Europe after fleeing the Nazi onslaught. The family takes up singing professionally only to aid their flight into exile.

The curtain rises on Maria, a novice in a convent who distresses the sedate nuns by wandering out on mountainsides to sing to herself. When a call comes from the aristocratic Capt. von Trapp for a girl who could act as governess to his seven motherless children, the Mother Superior chooses Maria. The choice proves a wise decision as the postulant wins the hearts of the children and then their father, teaches them the joys of singing and then helps them escape from the Nazis.

Memorable Music

Embellishing this warm, heart-tugging tale are some of the most memorable tunes from the Rodgers and Hammerstein bag. They include the rousing

"Climb Every Mountain," "My Favorite Things," "Do Re Mi," "The Sound of Music," "Maria," and the simple joyous "Edelweiss."

Bill Skilling, program director of WGHQ AM and FM, will again be directing this production for Coach House.

Featured in the cast are Madeline Wood as the Mother Abbess; William LaVoie as von Trapp's genial but cautious friend; June Scherwer as a fashionable visitor; and Catherine Askue, Jack Hill, Karen Trowbridge, Michael Mine, Susan Yochmann, Debbie Curl and Laurie Mine as the choraling kids.

Al Passer will appear in the important role of Rolf Gruber and sing "You Are Sixteen." A student at Ulster County Community College, Al elected to stay in Kingston when his family moved out of town, because of his role in this production. He will also be heard shortly as a soloist at an upcoming UCCC concert.

Others in Cast

Also in the cast are Terri Serravallo, Carol Gates, Doris Blatter, Alan Lockheart, Natalie Cobb, Linda Giles, Robert Meyerhoff, Frank Marquette, Irene Lanier, Richard Becker, Carol Casper, Angel Kearney, Margaret Kelly.

And Carol Knight, Yvonne O'Connor, Rita Mary Senor, Jo Thayer, Connie Wengert, Vincent McCarthy, George Mine, William Thomas and Henry Yochmann.

WERNER TORKANOWSKY

Here From New Orleans For a Second Concert

When the musicians from New Orleans performed here several years ago, their performance was one of the most popular concerts ever staged by the local Community Concerts Association.

Indeed, the New Orleans Philharmonic-Symphony won so many friends here that Community Concerts takes overwhelming pride in presenting the orchestra again.

Local music lovers, too, are excited about this return engagement which will bring the orchestra under the direction of Werner Torkanowsky to the stage of Kingston's Community Theatre on the evening of Monday, Nov. 16, under the sponsorship of the Association.

Heaviest Tour Season

This 35th year of the New Orleans Orchestra will be marked by the largest number of concerts in its history. Its 1970-71 tour will take it to over 30 cities in southern, eastern and mid-western states for 130 performances.

Headed by the highly acerbulent, temperament. He claimed Werner Torkanowsky, moved the music smartly along, now in his eighth year as and he was the major factor conductor of the group, the in getting the midsummer orchestra is already assured a serenade off to a good start."

Holds Four Grants

Recipient of a Ford Foundation grant of more than $3 million and three grants from the Rockefeller Foundation for work in contemporary music, the New Orleans Orchestra was recently signed for a series of 12 concerts in Mobile, Ala., after appearing there and winning so many friends that a ballot response of interest in such a series of concerts by the orchestra was overwhelmingly in favor.

Enthusiastic audience response greets Torkanowsky and his musicians wherever they go. Kingstonians, too, can be expected to cheer at the Nov. 16 concert, slated for 8:30 p.m. Doors open at 7:30, however, and Community Concerts urges ticket holders to arrive early, since seats are not reserved and no subscriptions will be available at the door due to the order of musicianship and an sold out subscription campaign.

Just last summer Torkanowsky opened Lincoln Center's Mozart Festival in New York City's Philharmonic Hall for the third time. Of his appearance there, The New York Times said: "Mr. Torkanowsky amply demonstrated a high order of musicianship and an

John Vanderlyn — A Celebrity Again In a Major Show

One of America's greatest artists, Kingston's own John Vanderlyn, had never had a major one-man show until just last month. An internationally known celebrity during this country's colonial period (Vanderlyn was born here in 1775 and died here in 1852), he has gone down in history as "the painter of presidents."

The astonishing neglect that withheld a major one-man show in his honor was rectified last Oct. 11 when 90 of his works were brought together in the University Art Gallery of the State University of New York at Binghamton.

This first major showing of the works of one of America's greatest artists of his time has been so successful at Binghamton that it is now running on after its announced closing date of Nov. 9.

Painted Seven Presidents

Vanderlyn's title of "painter of presidents" was bestowed with justification. His oils included portraits of Washington (now in the House of Representatives), Jefferson, Madison (gifted to the White House very recently), Monroe, Jackson, Van Buren, and Taylor.

The first American artist to study in France, Vanderlyn received recognition from the Emperor Napoleon at the Salon of 1808 for his famous painting, Marius Amid the Ruins of Carthage. He also painted Ariadne, the first and possibly the finest nude ever painted in this country. First exhibited in the Rotunda, America's first art gallery and built by Vanderlyn in New York City, Ariadne was originally viewed on separate days by men and women. This schedule was arranged to prevent ladies the embarrassment of hearing possible "lewd" comments from gentlemen, according to Kenneth C. Lindsay, professor of art history, who has researched Vanderlyn's life in depth.

Lindsay, who prepared the stunning 156-page catalogue which illustrates all the exhibited works at Binghamton, notes that Vanderlyn and Aaron Burr were close friends. He believes that Marius Amid the Ruins of Carthage depicts the politically crumbling Burr after he killed Alexander Hamilton in a duel. "Marius" is on loan to Binghamton from a San Francisco gallery. Portions of the oil painting are cracked as a result of San Francisco earthquakes.

Vanderlyn was also the first to paint Niagara Falls. Lindsay believes that the American history Vanderlyn recorded with his brush is of special significance to our troubled age as it recalls the heritage upon which the country was founded.

New Closing Date

Several of Vanderlyn's descendants attended the official opening of the upstate exhibit, now open to the public and extended through Nov. 16.

The show includes Vanderlyn works on loan from Kingston's own Senate House Museum, as well as from art galleries and private collectors throughout the country.

Tempo readers who'd like to drive up to Binghamton for the show are urged to do so. For those who find it impossible to make the trip, there's a fairly happy alternative. The beautiful, big catalogue of the show—

WAS AARON BURR the symbolic model for John Vanderlyn's famous painting, "Marius Amid the Ruins of Carthage"? Art historian Kenneth C. Lindsay thinks so; details his conviction in the catalogue for the all-Vanderlyn show now on exhibit in Binghamton. "Marius," for which Napoleon awarded the native born Kingston artist a gold medal, is one of 90 Vanderlyn works in the upstate show.

a real collector's item—is now the most fascinating purchase through the Senate House's own on sale at the Senate House being offered on the local market currently. And while you're here, take time out to browse. You'll be glad you did.

In Which a Talented Pianist Bakes a Pie

Philip Mealey's laughter spilled over and the words tumbled out joyously as he described his walk in the woods of the night before. The bright Willow sky acting as a proscenium. The Willow moon serving as a spotlight on a herd of deer dining in a nearby apple orchard.

The pianist, discovered cooking Sunday breakfast for a group of Woodstock friends, ignored a smarting burn on his hand as some bacon fat hissed from pan to hand to stove.

Flipping the eggs expertly, he talked as he cooked. His mother, French concert pianist Mari Malvine LeVasseur, discovered Philip copying her practice sessions at the age of four, beginning with the Rachmaninoff Preludes. His father, a high school principal, was also an enthusiastic booster of a musical career for his third son, who was an accomplished figure skating champion, as well as a keyboard talent.

A heart murmur, however, ruled out track, which became a ruling passion for a time. By the year he had entered Boston University, Philip Mealey's fluent French, perfect pitch and athletic prowess assured him of becoming a popular man on campus.

After graduation he toured Europe in a series of concerts under the auspices of the U.S. State Department. He was about to leave for a tour of South America when a chance meeting at a party with Louise Curcio changed his life.

The fast-rising young pianist, persuaded by his friends to play some Chopin Nocturnes, unwittingly came under the scrutiny of Miss Curcio, author of "The Ultimate in Music" and "The Single Note." This chance meeting changed Philip Mealey's life in that he cancelled his South American tour to study with this remarkable woman.

Serving the now finished bacon and eggs, he talked about that period in his life.

"Louise is a musical technician in so far as hand position, breaking up of a phrase, and the unrelenting of any two notes," he said. "She deals with body mass as opposed to the piano as an instrument."

Mealey explained that the result is a three-dimensional tone. "This is one reason why it is unnecessary to play Mozart using the pedals," he said. He noted that Miss Curcio differs from most teachers in that she encourages the artist to recreate. "She doesn't stress the reading of notes or memorizing in her teaching," he said.

The Mealey laughter spilled over again as he remembered an anecdote. It involved an occasion last year when the soloist of the Union Symphony became ill before he was scheduled to play the Mozart Concerto No. 21.

"The conductor called me up and asked me if I knew the work and would fill in. I said I did indeed know the work and that I would fill in. I memorized the piece overnight; had never had a rehearsal; knew this was to be a radio broadcast as well as a concert performance."

Laughing again, the young pianist said: "I received a standing ovation from the audience and the orchestra—but the next morning I woke up with a case of the hives that lasted a whole week."

The Sunday morning breakfast party was joined at this point by Lulu and Adam Thiel, who arrived with a huge apple pie. The pie, immediately inspected by Mealey—known among his friends as an apple pie fancier—was then cut up and devoured on the spot.

The author pronounced it the best she'd ever eaten, and this brought on a discussion between Mealey and Lulu on kinds of apples to use, and white vs. brown sugar.

Apple pie expert Mealey insisted that brown sugar "takes away from the distinctive, tart taste of the Ulster apple," and then proceeded to propound the most radical theory of how to prepare pie pastry we'd ever heard.

He calmly announced to his disbelieving listeners that he RINSES—yes, rinses—his crusts in cold water!

A hue and cry went up to test such radicalism on the spot, and tested it was.

Two kinds of apples were immediately gathered from the back yard, raisins and walnuts were thrown into the blender, $\frac{3}{4}$ of a cup of white sugar, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon of cinnamon, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup of orange juice concentrate, and two tablespoons of flour were added.

Pianistic-pie expert Mealey prepared the crust in seclusion. ("Can't tell everything," he said.)

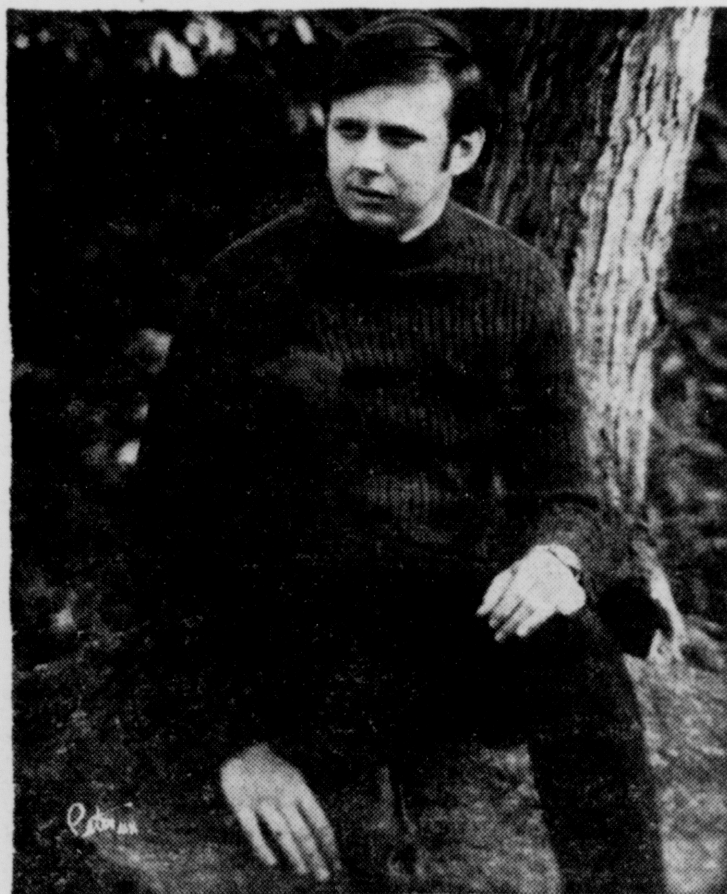

Then, in view of his skeptical audience, he covered the pie with the pastry, ran a six inch circle of shortening over the crust, pressed flour into the circle, and put the whole pie under cold, running water for one minute. He then popped the pie into the oven and while he waited in hungry anticipation—but still disbelieving—he entertained by playing a program of light works of Mozart, Mendelssohn, and others.

It was by way of rehearsal for the concert he will give at Bard College on the evening of Tuesday, Nov. 17.

The bell rang on the kitchen stove, signifying that the pie had baked away for 50 minutes. Mealey finished the last cadenza of the Mozart Concerto. Then, followed by the breakfast party crowd, he went into the sunlit kitchen and removed his brown and bubbling pie from the oven.

Adam Thiel leaned over to get a closer look. "I don't care," he said, "I'm still gonna like one and all to attend; perhaps Lulu's pie the best." Lulu even brought a pie. (By RUTH LORRAINE SHERMAN)

In the hand of Thomas Cole (1861-1848), the Catskill land- scape became a crazy, beautiful, hallucinatory trip. Hurling precipices, dizzying vistas, swirling colors, jagged, improbable compositions, all swimming in brilliant, shifting lights, combine to produce this reeling effect.

Cole was the greatest of our painters. He pioneered land- scape painting, elevating it to an epic form.

Now, as a result of work begun in the late 1960's, another local artist has produced a work of epic form — one as pioneering as any of Cole's, and one based just as truly on the Catskill andscape.

A Cliff in Plastic

That would be Manuel Bromberg, the creator of a realistic, 15-foot high replica of a Catskill mountain rock cliff, produced in stone-like plastic.

And a program that should have wide appeal is the illustrated film talk artist Bromberg will present at Ulster County Community College on Tuesday, Nov. 17. His ap- pearance on the Stone Ridge campus is being sponsored by UCCC's Department of Visual Arts. Internationally known, artist Bromberg will appear there as guest-lecturer for a Meet-the-Artist program. His gallery lecture and film will take place Nov. 17 at 1:40 p.m. in Lecture Hall 420 on campus. Both the lecture and reception for Bromberg following are open to the public, as well as all segments of the college community.

Bromberg, an Art professor at State University of New York at New Paltz, is a former Guggenheim fellow, a noted murlaist and the recipient of numerous honors. He received the Distinguished Research Award from the State University of New York in 1967 and a Grant in Aid in 1968-69 to help finance his astounding and awesome project of casting a Catskill cliff.

Section Displayed

Artist Bromberg and his assistant, Randolph Madlen, devised the unique technique used in creating the cliff sculpture, a section of which will be on display in the Faculty-Artist Exhibition opening at the college Nov. 16.

In his foreword to this show's catalog, the famed critic Dr. William Seitz writes: "the 15 foot high replica of a cliff-face by Manueel Bromberg exhibits skill, ruggedness and determination to recreate a huge fragment of nature's randomness and structure and present it before us for meditation and rejuvenation. Such audacity, one feels, would have delighted the souls of William Cullen Bryant and Thomas Cole: the Hudson River School of the 1960's!"

'YOUR SHIELD OF SECURITY'

WILLIAM WARFIELD

Hollywood Briefs

Busy Guesters

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Martha Raye, Pat Carroll, Paul Lynde, Nanette Fabray and Pat Paulsen have been set for two guest appearances each on the Carol Burnett show this season.

Fonda's Series

Production has started in Hollywood on the comedy-drama series, "The Smith Family," starring Henry on- da, that ABC will fit into its schedule next Jan- star plays a Los Angeles detective sergeant.

Acclaimed around the world as one of the greatest singers of our time, William Warfield, America's famed bass-baritone, will appear here in Kingston on Monday, Nov. 23 at the Community Theatre with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra.

Warfield, who secured a lasting place for himself in theatrical history via his great stage success as "Porgy" in the mid-1950's revival of George Gershwin's classic "Porgy and Bess," will be guest artist with the Philharmonic as it opens its regular 1970-71 subscription series here. He will be heard in a performance of the Verdi Requiem Mass.

Warfield, who has grown in stature, power and popularity since his debut in a recital at Manhattan's Town Hall in early 1950, made "Porgy" a household word even in Russia. He is also remembered globally for his magnificent rendition of "Ol' Man River" in the recent movie version of "Show Boat." Critics reported the song regularly elicited spontaneous applause, a rare reaction from motion picture audiences.

Also on Program

For his Kingston performance, he will be joined by soprano Lorice Stevens, mezzo-soprano Valerie Baulard and tenor Paul Taylor. Claude Monteux will be conducting the Community Mixed Chorus and the Philharmonic Orchestra.

Born in Arkansas, the eldest of five sons, Warfield grew up in Rochester, N. Y. where his father was pastor of the Mount Vernon Baptist Church there. Since first being propelled into the front rank of vocal artists with his historic Town Hall debut, he has achieved extraordinary triumphs wherever he has sung. He tours extensively in concert; is always in constant demand as a guest soloist in this country and abroad.

His impact on audiences the world over is borne out by his appointment as a cultural ambassador on behalf of the U.S. Department of State. And his international success as a concert artist with major orchestras is equalled by his impressive dramatic talent. As "De Lawd" in Marc Connelly's "Green Pastures," he offered one of television's finest dramatic moments.

His performance in the Verdi Requiem here will mark his third appearance with the area Philharmonic in six years, including a 1968 special performance of Handel's "Messiah" in Poughkeepsie.

Records Top Sellers

The bass-baritone's recordings, whether solo or with orchestra, have been top best sellers. He has recorded Handel's "Messiah" with both the New York Philharmonic under Leonard Bernstein and the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy. With the late Bruno Walter conducting, he recorded Mozart's "Requiem" with the New York Philharmonic.

In addition to his performance of the Requiem at the Community here on Nov. 23, he will also appear in the area in the same program on Nov. 21 at Newburgh Free Academy and at Poughkeepsie High School on Nov. 22. All performances will be with the HVPO and all will be at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets for the Ulster County subscription series are still available and information may be obtained by calling 331-1861.

Area Violinist Wins Seat in All-State Orchestra

Nathaniel Hawthorne, the legendary 19th century author whose works have been judged classics of American literature, once lived and wrote on a private estate in the Berkshire Hills. And he is on record as having said that he could barely work in the presence of such scenic beauty.

But write he did, and so well that — in retrospect — one must judge that he drew inspiration from his mountain surroundings.

Perhaps in this story out of the past comes a partial explanation of how a youthful musician in a small mountain village is able to compete successfully with others in his field who have grown up in large cities where cultural opportunities are supposedly so much greater.

Won With Concerto

For Larry Gardner, 16-year-old violinist of Hunter, N.Y., life in the Catskills has not been a musical drawback. His talent has just won him a seat in the All-State Symphony Orchestra for 1970. Selected by a tough-minded jury of auditions in state-wide competition, he won the coveted honor by playing the first movement of the Concerto in A minor by Gio. Battista Viotta, late 18th and early 19th century composer generally regarded as the founder of modern advanced violin technique.

To be selected for the All-State Symphony is one of the highest honors attainable by a student performer. For Larry Gardner, the award comes after six years of violin study with Frank Mele, who teaches privately in his Yerry Hill Road studio in Woodstock.

It was a remark by instructor Mele that recalled the Hawthorne story to mind. Commenting on his pupil, he said, "Larry's progress is all the more remarkable when one reflects on the imbalance of stimuli in a mountain village as compared to any to the upstate cities, not to mention New York City and Long Island, from where most of the competitors for state honors came."

Perhaps there is stimuli enough in scenic beauty when the combination also includes a wealth a talent.

Winner Gardner, a senior at Hunter-Tannersville Central School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Gardner of Hunter. He competed in regional auditions in Albany; was accompanied during his violin selection by pianist Mrs. Constance Carter, a member of the music department of Hunter-Tannersville School.

Plays Italian Violin

Larry's violin is a modern Italian instrument made by Iginio Siega. Mele says it is a "superb example" of the Venetian school of violin making; formerly belonged to the collection of the late Joseph Settin, one of the best violin makers of his own time.

Teacher Mele, pleased with his pupil's accomplishments, praises him as a well-balanced youth, who has responded to the high standards set by his parents at home and his teachers at school. That Larry is a good ball player as well as a musician does not surprise his Woodstock instructor. He is a member of both the baseball and basketball teams, a fact that causes Mele to theorize that it's not inconceivable that violin playing "helps to shape up the reflexes" for other activities. Mele himself has long regarded violin playing "a very demanding and refined form of athletics."

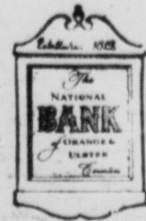

The youthful Hunter violinist

IN HIS WOODSTOCK STUDIO, teacher Frank Mele supervises violin lesson of 16-year-old Larry Gardner. The youthful musician has been selected as a member of the prestigious All-State Symphony Orchestra for 1970. (Freeman photo by Kruh) is now looking forward to this year's meeting of the award winners at the Concord Hotel from Dec. 6-9. With all expenses paid, he will attend rehearsals and appear in concert with the All-State Orchestra under the direction of Frederick Fennell, noted conductor.

A professional LP recording of the concert will be given to Larry and all other participants. And, back home in the scenic Catskills, he can be expected to play it again and again as living proof of one of the first memorable music events in his career. (T.G.)

'Social Pollution'

SINGAPORE (UPI)—Singapore Moslems want the government to scrutinize foreign films to fight "social pollution." Ismail Abdulla Chew, secretary of the All-Malaysia Missionary Society, appealed for representation on the Singapore Film Censor Board. He said "the hippies are gaining influence too fast for the elders to make an effective check."

PAW's 'Brecht' a Big Winner; Tapped for 'State Festival'

Bringing Bertoldt Brecht into focus via its staging of "Brecht on Brecht" has brought honors in abundance to Performing Arts of Woodstock.

PAW entered its production—a collage of Brecht's writings—in the recent regional competition of the New York State Theater Festival Association at Poughkeepsie's Marist College. It emerged from that competition by winning the "best long play" citation from various offerings staged by community, civic and college theater groups.

Directed by Allison Crockett, the PAW production also received an additional and coveted honor. It was recommended to compete at the prestigious State Festival in Corning, slated for Nov. 20, 21 and 22.

Adjudicator for the regional competition was Mort Clark, of the Westchester Community College drama faculty and the NYSTFA's board of directors.

Other Laurels, Too

The Brecht show was PAW's first official entry in a competitive event and, in besting competition from Dutchess and Sullivan counties, the production added other laurels to its crown.

Special recognition for individual acting performances went to Jo McKim Chalmers and Julia Callahan, two of PAW's most talented members. In addition, the entire cast—including actors Larry Shufeldt and Martin Henderson—rated high acclaim for an exceptionally talented and intelligent performance.

Adjudicator Clark, in awarding the "best long play" honors, praised director Crockett for her conception and direction of the show. In a comprehensive critique, he also commended the artistic technical achievements in set, lighting, and other aspects of the show.

Arrangement Cited

Singled out for particular acclaim was Miss Crockett's ingenious arrangement and movement of the cast which, combined with effective lighting, created a "flow of people and poetry over the three-tiered platform set," said Clark.

"It's a beautiful show," Clark added. "Don't change a thing."

Director Crockett and her cast have no plans to do so. Having performed the Brecht work prior to the regional competition during a weekend run in Woodstock and an additional staging in Kingston, PAW is eager to accept the invitation to the State Festival in Corning.

But to do so, it needs sponsors and financial support to cover the three-day upstate festival. Eager to bring more honors to our area, they are hopeful that help will be forthcoming from businessmen and individuals interested in theatre. Anyone wishing to contribute toward sending PQW's "Brecht on Brecht" to the state competition is urged to call Mrs. Edith LeFever at 679-2114.

JO McKIM CHALMERS, a familiar face in many Performing Arts of Woodstock productions, was given special recognition for her acting ability in PAW's "Brecht on Brecht" during recent judging in New York State Theater Festival Association's regional competition.

Paltz Art Show Adds New Taping

Aimed at highlighting its current exhibition of original architectural drawings from the Royal Institute of British Architects in London, the College Art Gallery at New Paltz is currently presenting a special program.

The interesting presentation includes a series of slides, some of which illustrate the existing structures for which the drawings in the show were executed. Accompanying the slides are taped lectures by Dr. Peter Bohan, Miss Helen Harkonen, and William Rhoads, all members of the Art History faculty at the State University College at New Paltz.

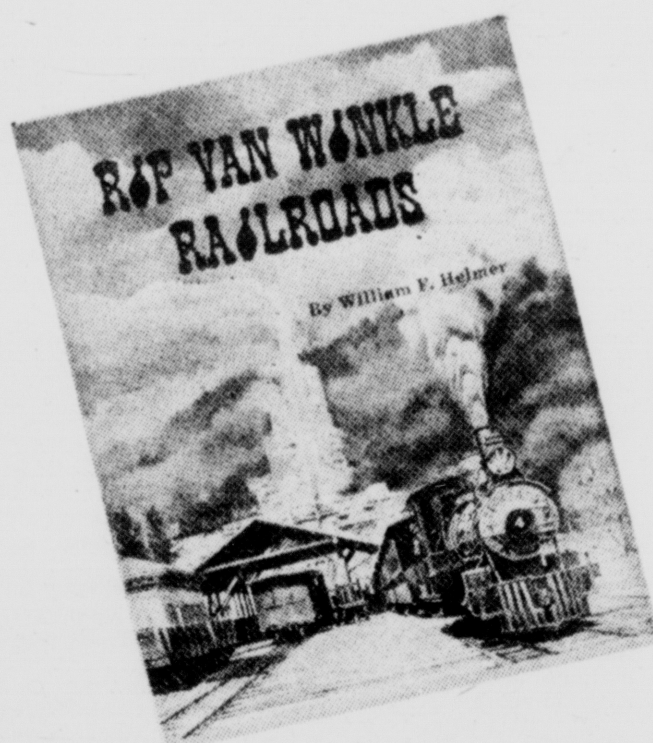

Dr. Bohan deals with a general survey of British architectural development; Miss Harkonen discusses the interior designs of the royal buildings and Georgian country houses shown and their relationship to the exterior architectural plans. Rhoads treats the concept of the palace in the United States as influenced by Georgian architects.

The program is a continuous taping and can be seen at any time during regular gallery hours through the show's run until Nov. 20. Hours are: 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Bewitching Play For '90 Milers'

"Pye-Pye-Pywacket" will herald witchcraft in 90 Miles' amateur community theatre.

According to Mrs. Pat Off-Broadway's forthcoming production of "Bell, Book and Candle," "Pywacket" is an unusual cat who serves Miss Gillian Holroyd in the administration of her equally unusual powers. The three-act comedy, scheduled for performances on Dec. 3, 4 and 5 at the New Paltz High School auditorium, will mark the Paltz Paltz.

MOVIES

House of Dark Shadows

Who let Barnabas Collins out of his coffin? What were the mysterious wounds in Daphne's neck? What did David Collins see in the swimming pool? What did Professor Stokes find in the cobwebby bedroom? Who locked Maggie in the abandoned room? Whose body was that in the closet?

The answers to all these posers will be found in "House of Dark Shadows," the feature film now playing at Kingston's Community. Based on the fanatically successful television series, Dark Shadows, the movie is infused with all the qualities of horror and romance that has made the TV show such a hit with an audience ranging from suburban housewives to the hippest high-school students.

As just about everyone must know by now, it stars Jonathan Frid, alias Barnabas Collins, vampire. Frid has proved to be a teeny-bopper's delight, a Shakespearean actor who has set the hearts of housewives fluttering, a new kind of matinee idol. His portrayal of a 175-year-old (but well preserved) vampire on the afternoon soap opera has made the show a top-rated hit.

Features Serial's Cast

In his first film, he co-stars with Joan Bennett and Grayson

Hall and a cast drawn almost entirely from the serial. The movie revolves around Barnabas and his entry into the Collins family, but is entirely different from that episode on TV.

The picture will delight fans of the series. For Barnabas is still a suave vampire with appeal to the female audience as the last word in dangerous males. In the film, he's offered the chance to be cured, and eagerly seeks it for the sake of a girl who resembles an old love of the 18th century. Even so, there's still plenty of blood, since his baser instincts take over frequently.

Stealing a fair share of scenes in the film is a 132-year-old grande dame, making her movie debut. A native of Tarrytown, N.Y., this gracious, if ponderous, beldame has rested there viewing the Hudson River for over a century. Her name is Lyndhurst, and she is a Gothic mansion, all towers and parapets. Once the home of a former mayor of New York and the notorious financier, Jay Gould, her name is Lyndhurst, and she's portraying Collinwood, the gloomy fortress of the ill-fated Collins clan, and a mysterious Maine mansion in the plot.

Snuggling up to a werewolf has never been our idea of romance, but "House of Dark Shadows" convinced us that a nice guy beset with vampirism is a continental type who could master us at a glance. Barnabas is absolutely irresistible!

Sunflower

Held over through Nov. 17 at Hyde Park's Roosevelt is "Sunflower," which gives us Sophia Loren as a poor Neapolitan seamstress. That's enough in itself to make strong men cry, but things get worse when her life is shattered by her husband's disappearance on the Russian front during World War II.

A tear jerker in the old-fashioned romantic skein, the film has Sophia suddenly deciding, now that her hair is laced with grey, that her husband (Marcello Mastroianni) is still alive somewhere. Off she treks to Russia to find out once and for all if he is dead or just missing.

Find him she does, but in such schmaltzy circumstances, only sentimentalists and dyed-in-the-wool romantics will find the plot anything but saccharine.

The brilliant talents of Loren and Mastroianni have been squandered in this film of pilgrimage and love once shared now shattered. It does, however, afford the viewer a rare opportunity of seeing such diverse places as Moscow and the Ukraine, since the film is one of the first to be made in Russia by outsiders.

The Virgin and the Gypsy

Now playing at both Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema and the New Paltz Cinema is this film, based on a D. H. Lawrence story. It is one of the finest movies ever made from the writer's work (and there have been many).

"The Virgin and the Gypsy" is a stunning portrayal of life in the 1920's when family conventions and social hypocracies kept maidens on a straight and narrow path. Joanna Shimkus turns in an inspired performance as a girl just out of finishing school and under the influence of her disciplinarian father, a vicar in England. But the liberation of the Roaring '20s is in her blood, and her life is altered when she meets a brooding gypsy played by Frances Nero.

Other movies based on Lawrence have been more sensation-seeking than true to his code of moral absolutism. "Gypsy" is the best of the lot; has utilized Lawrence's material brilliantly and done so by concentrating on the talents of a fine cast.

People Next Door

Trouble comes to the typical (?) American family when the teenage daughter is discovered huddled in the back of her bedroom closet, freaking out on a bad LSD trip.

That's the basic plot line of "The People Next Door," the film now playing at Kingston's Mayfair. With such obvious talents as Eli Wallach and Julie Harris as the troubled parents, tral School District were treated to a musical "tour of the world" recently when folksinger Frank Schildt visited OCS's four elementary schools.

A Tour of World Via Folksinger

A self-styled troubadour, with a commanding personality, Schildt presented songs ranging from Zulu tribal chants, Caribbean Calypso, folksongs of England, France, Mexico and the United States, ending in a rousing "This Land Is My Land" in which his audiences enthusiastically joined.

His bass-baritone voice is rich and expressive, and teachers as well as students involuntarily joined in many of the songs.

The assemblies were presented at Onteora's elementary schools at Bennett, Phoenicia, West Hurley and Woodstock, with a special adaptation presented at the Junior High School as well.

This was one of the programs presented to the school district with the assistance of the Onteora Arts Committee and arranged through the cooperation of the school's principals.

Joan's Daughter

The Christina Crawford who will be seen in the "Elegy to a Mad Dog" episode on ABC's "Marcus Welby, M.D." series this season is the daughter of veteran star Joan Crawford. She plays a nun teaching retarded children.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Reporter J. H. Simpson Jr. (Waynesboro, Va.) asked: What's education all about? Here's some youngsters' replies:

1.) "Education learns you how to do things; you go to school so you'll have some marbles in your head."

2.) "A principal's somebody who doesn't trust the intercom; you know 'cause he's always shouting, 'Testing, one, two, three.'"

3.) "A PTA's a meeting where you have to wait around a lot... somethin' like a woman's meeting. They talk a little, then everybody goes for refreshments."

4.) "A principal's a person that's a member of the school board. He tells teachers what they can do and where they can go."

Speakin' of learnin', a tour of IBM makes one feel like he's playin' second fiddle to computer — without "tennis shoes," that is.

Just feed the open-mouthed calculator a card bearing date of birth and seconds later up it pops like slice-of-toast with statistics including date-one-can-retire. WOW! Moonlightin' as "Operation Love Match" what a sideline IBM could promote, diggin' up suitable mates for luv-starved single souls!

Among oodles of "info" gleaned from tour was how to say THINK in 23 languages. Translations were etched on handy bookmarks. Oops, bookmarks did we say; at least we "dink" 'dey were!!

A-1 article on "Fluorine — Peck's Bad Boy of Chemical Underworld" in recent issue of Natural Food News. First sentence: Fluorine made atomic bomb possible. Floored?? Read it yourself. Drop in at Colonial Health Store; ask Ed or Sam for copy. (It's FREE!)

So don't just sit there — worry. Crossin' one's fingers sure ain't gonna help; time to adjust those thinking caps. After all, who wants to end up a corpse with firm molars?

Don't miss St. James Matthews' pipe display in window of Ulster County Savings Bank. Archaic conversation pieces even include authentic opium pipe, "Hippie's delight." Not certain tho' there was a peace pipe. On the other hand, does the world today really need one? (Does the Tower of Pisa lean?) . . . Pity poor Jimmy Lawrence! On seein' his car after Halloween — covered with shaving cream, tissue paper and eggs — Jim said he didn't know whether to "shave it, flush it, or fry it . . ."

Open house one recent Sunday at Delano's Art Gallery featured Alkis Thomas' "Bee Sting," so real one could well-nigh hear tiny tyke's shriek as she stared crosseyed thru tears at bee nibblin' nose. But don't take our word for it; see for yourself. Stroll through jewelry store to rear; and while there don't overlook Ron Hicenbotham's Indian Woman; "Redwoods" by Lena Brown; and Elaine Peck's "girl by the Wall" . . . Support your local talent!

Horse racin' fans can still get in on jet-set-act at Saratoga track, world's fastest half-miler. During November groups of two dozen to 200 can stage buffet party AND present trophy — $25 or more — to champion (So that's what "social security" means!) . . . This month's Liguorian magazine says: Death is nature's way of telling us to slow down. Holiday Inn sign says it another way: Drive Carefully—Don't insist on your "rites." Either way, we get the message!

ERNESTLY SPEAKING

12 MORE DAYS

As Thanksgiving Day draws nearer, I'd like to suggest that one of the things we can be thankful for is that, these days, we get our Thanksgiving Dinner a whole lot easier than the Pilgrims did!

They had to go skyhooting through the woods looking for a turkey to shoot with the old blunderbuss. If they got one, they had to spend all that time picking the buckshot out of the carcass. Then everybody had to fall to work preparing and cooking, with no electric mixers, can openers or other labor-saving gadgets. What a chore!

Today it's easy! You just call for reservations at ROBERTO'S, gather round the table, enjoy a Cocktail with the compliments of the house, have a festive dinner with all the traditional trimmings (and a few of ROBERTO'S own untraditional ones.)

You get meat from a bird that's been especially bred to be a tender Thanksgiving Day morsel, without the fuss and muss of making a big meal at home . . . or washing dishes afterward.

And I'll throw you a problem: At $5.95 per adult appetite (and only $3.95 for children under 10) YOU figure out how much less (if any) it would cost to put this meal together at home . . . with the Drinks, the Relish Trays, the Shrimp Cocktails, the Turkey and Trimmings, the Salads, the Fancy Desserts, and the Coffee.

You'll probably figure that for the few cents you might save it doesn't pay to do it yourself, when all you have to do is dial 338-5560 and tell us what time (from noon 'til eight) you want a table for how many.

BUT TOMORROW IS ANOTHER DAY!

Far be it from me to suggest that you should wait until Thanksgiving Day to have dinner at Roberto's. Any excuse to celebrate is good enough reason to treat yourself to the wonderful full course dinner you get for such a modest tariff.

You start off with a cocktail of your choice; on the house! That's just for openers then you whet the appetite with an appetizer . . . say a shrimp cocktail, or baked clams Roberto, or escargot if you are in the real Continental mood. Or maybe you'd rather try Roberto's French Onion Soup, it's the real thing. Then you get the entree of your choice accompanied by appropriate potato and vegetable, plus a tossed green salad with your favorite dressing . . . even Rouquefort. Top that off with a luscious dessert. (maybe Rum Cake Roberto) and your choice of beverage . . . and you've had a repast of Gourmet Cuisine in "gourmand" proportions.

Of course, the main thing is that no matter what entree you choose, from the most modest to the most elaborate and no matter what the price you get exactly those same fixings, you just can't be a second class citizen at Roberto's.

So, if you don't happen to have a birthday or an anniversary, or some other excuse to treat yourself to a great dinner, just celebrate the fact that Roberto's has started on its second year here and every night is a holiday.

AMONG THOSE PLEASANT

Last Sunday ROBERTO'S was the scene of an especially enjoyable Dinner Party, tendered by Bob Henry Jr. in celebration of the Twenty Fifth Anniversary of the parents of his wife, Sharon. The Silver Anniversary couple, Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Flynn, and some 30 friends and relatives (Sharon says that in this case, they're the same!) assembled to pay honor to the guests of honor, and remained to pay homage to the culinary prowess of Chef Roberto, who masterminded a sumptuous dinner for them.

Such a good time was had by all that Bob says he and Sharon are looking forward to repeating the party for the folks' Fiftieth Anniversary. Want to make that reservation right now, Bob?

Among those pleasant at Luncheon recently was a group of Nurses from the Kingston Hospital's Emergency Room. They all agreed that they would like to have ROBERTO'S Rum Cake made part of the menu at the Hospital . . . for the nurses, not for the patients!

Other smiling faces noted in the Main Dining Room again included: George and Martha from the famed Park Diner, Mr. and Mrs. John Scully, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown with Mr. and Mrs. Roosa, Mr. and Mrs. George Dahl celebrating a Birthday and an Anniversary.

THE PARTY LINE

Now that the election is over, folks will be thinking about Social and Business Parties, instead of Political Parties. Let me remind you that ROBERTO'S comes to the aid of all Parties with the best combination of Distinctive Atmosphere, Distinguished Cuisine and disarmingly Discreet Prices in the entire Valley.

Over and above the superior food, ROBERTO'S can create a Luncheon or Dinner Menu to suit almost any palate and any purse . . . for any size gathering up to 150 (you can have the whole place on Wednesday!)

I don't claim we can suit everybody; if you hanker for Polynesian food, or a full-course dinner for $2.95 . . . that's not our department. But if you crave Cuisine (with a capital C!), of American and Continental favorites, at sensible prices, phone or drop in for our PRINTED Brochure and Price List. You'll be amazed to find how much more ROBERTO'S actually gives you for your money!

THE COCKTAIL LOUNGE

buckets right along with its accustomed popularity, peaking on Friday and Saturday nights, when it's enlivened by the artistry of Mark Garrison at the Hammond (so popular that we have Mark coming in on Sunday) . . . and the impromptu Sing-Along Time put on by patrons. Join the fun.

Speaking of the Cocktail Lounge reminds me to remind you that "Every Day Is Ladies' Day" at the Bar, Monday through Friday . . . when the Ladies get any Cocktail or Drink at half price! More anon!

ANN-MARGRET, as a graduate student, tangles with police in a campus crisis in scene from "R.P.M." (Revolutions Per Minute), the film opening this Sunday for a run through Thursday, Nov. 19 at Kingston's Community. Co-starring are Anthony Quinn as a socially-aware university president, and Gary Lockwood as the militant student leader with whom he must deal.

"People" might well have excelled as a problem-probing film. But things begin to pall early on as mom and dad yell at each other, at big brother, at little sister, at anybody and everybody involved.

Filled with cliches and managing to come up with what must be the most oversimplified solution to the narcotics problem ever dreamed up, the film does no credit to its serious subject.

Too bad, really, since Wallach turns in a fine performance as the father; Hal Holbrook is excellent as a next-door neighbor; and the young actors—Deborah Winters, Stephen McHattie and Don Scardino—are all talented newcomers. This could have been a film that showed some insight into today's drug problems and one that might have spelled out some solutions. It fails in both instances, however, simply because "People" rationalizes the young people's interest in drugs, and attempts a solution that only an idiot could visualize as working in all cases.

R.P.M.

Following "House of Dark Shadows" to the screen of Kingston's Community will be "R.P.M." The latest offering by the much-praised Stanley Kramer, it is yet another film about campus revolt, of which there have been more than a few this year.

Not the best "sit-in" film that Hollywood has come up with, it casts Anthony Quinn in a role similar to that which Elliott Gould did better in "Getting Straight." Quinn is a sociology professor who becomes acting president of a strife-ridden university.

Ann-Margret has climbed down off Joe Namath's motorcycle to play Quinn's mistress and a graduate student of sociology. Given what she's got going for her, she makes a fine mistress—but it's a little difficult to picture the girl who swooned over Conrad Birdie as the mature recipient of a Masters degree.

Some folks will probably like this pix simply because it has Quinn or because it has Ann-Margret. We'll leave it to them and stick to "Getting Straight" or "The Strawberry Statement" when it comes to campus protest coverage.

Other Choices

NORWOOD. At the Orpheum in Saugerties for matinee performances this weekend only, the treat of treats for Joe Namath and Glen Campbell fans. The two American folk heroes co-star in a story of two buddies fresh out of the service and off on new adventures in civilian life. Kim Darby and Carol Lynley are two of the girls they encounter along the way.

TELL ME THAT YOU LOVE ME, JUNIE MOON. Liza Minnelli stars in this tale of a group of misfits (one badly scarred, another a homosexual, and a third small of brain) who find some sort of meaningful life with each other in spite of their roles as society's outcasts. It's an unusual and sometimes intriguing film; is now on screen at the Rosendale Theatre.

MASH. For more than two months, this black comedy, starring Elliott Gould and Donald Sutherland has been holding forth at Poughkeepsie's Juliet. Fabulously funny film fare, it centers on the mad adventures of service doctors during the Korean War. (By TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

Yule Perennials

NEW YORK (UPI)—Over the years, the television networks have created several Christmas shows that have become perennials. To be repeated again are "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" on NBC Dec. 4, "Frosty the Snowman" on CBS Dec. 5 and "A Charlie Brown Christmas" on CBS Dec. 5. While not strictly a Christmas show, "Hans Brinker" has something of a holiday flavor, and NBC must have been motivated by that fact in scheduling this two-hour special for a reprise on Dec. 12. While not yet announced, you can be sure that at least one of the various video or movie versions of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" will be repeated on some network by Dec. 25.
